

Thousands Join Marching to Montgomery

Proclaims 'Victory' Day for Unusual Protest

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A crowd estimated at more than 15,000 persons led by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., began an unprecedented march to Alabama's Capitol today in a color-marched demonstration dramatizing a Negro voter's struggle for equality.

King marched at the head of a massive column from a camp behind a Roman Catholic hospital. He wore a dark overcoat. His wife, Coretta, walked beside him. She was wearing an orange wool outfit.

Participants from all over the country joined the march. It became an international demonstration when a group of Canadians fell into the ranks.

A heavy guard of National Guardsmen and regulars formed a heavy line. Army helicopters circled overhead.

Ph. J. Bunche of the United Nations staff joined King. He, like King a Nobel Peace Prize winner, had marched the trek began five days ago at Selma, 50 miles to the north.

Overcast sky threatened rain. It was warm and humid. King was delayed briefly by sheriff's deputies from Madison County — Selma — and his wife with papers in a suit seeking to halt a Negro march of city buses in Selma.

Front Ranks — The front ranks were Roy Harris, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The Rev. Ralph D. Abernethy, associate of King; Lewis, national chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee; and the F. D. Reese, Selma Negro leader, marched near the head of the column.

L. Lackey, assistant police chief, estimated the marchers at 15,000 before the march began and before hundreds of thousands of Negro spectators lined the street and sang "Free-edom."

The marchers headed slowly toward the white Capitol, once the headquarters of the Confederacy. It was under heavy guard. Soldiers, state troopers and policemen.

Normal Day — George C. Wallace was in his office. He told a reporter he would have a normal work day. He said he might issue a statement later.

King had said he would seek to end a Negro voter-right march to Wallace.

Members of the Alabama legislature, which was in session on the front steps of the Capitol. One of them, Rep. Pierce of Montgomery, said: "This is my first time in occupied territory."

100 Young Reds Anti-American — A group of 100 young men and women demonstrated in front of the Alabama State Capitol today, shouting anti-American slogans and waving American flags.

Protesters — About 6,000 demonstrators, mostly young workers, staged a violent anti-American rally in downtown Tokyo today, shouting anti-American slogans and waving American flags.

Four-Year School Advocates, Pro-Con, Bombard Hearing

350 Persons, Largest Group of Session, Attend Madison Meeting Blackout on News Imposed For Okinawa

BY JOHN DOYLE Post-Crescent News Service

MADISON — Advocates for and against four-year colleges in northeastern and southeastern Wisconsin bombarded a joint legislative education committee with facts, figures and emotional appeals here Wednesday.

Committees of the Assembly and Senate heard scores of legislators and nearly 40 citizens during a public hearing on bills to appropriate $2.4 million for planning the schools.

The hearing, attended by about 350 persons, was the largest at this session and one of the largest in recent years. Kenosha and Green Bay headed the list of delegations with about 100 persons each. Also represented were Appleton, Manitowoc, Sturgeon Bay, Marinette, Racine and the Park Falls-Phillips area.

Heading the list of proponents were Lt. Gov. Patrick Lucey and University of Wisconsin Pres. Fred H. Harrington. Others again voicing support for the new four-year institutions were State Senators Gerald Lorge, Bear Creek; Robert W. Warren, Green Bay; and Alex Meunier, Sturgeon Bay. Lorge is co-author of the Senate version of the bills.

Brown County Assemblymen Jerome Quinn and Cletus Vanderperren also spoke in favor of the schools.

Head Opposition

Heading the opposition were Marinette Assemblyman Robert Haase, former state university regent Mrs. Gordon McIntyre, Appleton, and representatives of Oshkosh business and the chamber of commerce.

The Northeastern Wisconsin Education Committee, which has worked on studies for the new school for over two years, was represented by John Torinus, editor of The Post-Crescent; John Somerville, president of the Green Bay Chamber of Commerce; and George Greenwood, Kaukauna.

The new committee, Racine-Kenosha representatives, and legislators ignored Gov. Warren P. Knowles suggestion that only third and fourth year institutions be started now. The governor, in an address to the legislature Wednesday morning, advocated adding the two advanced years and use of the present university centers as a base.

Torinus cited the need for educational facilities in northeastern Wisconsin to aid in the area's industrial development. He also hammered at the fact that 70 per cent of the state's population is within the Green Bay-Kenosha-Madison triangle but that only four of Wisconsin's 11 state schools are located there.

Meyer Cohen, DePere attorney, and former member of the UW Regents and Coordinating Committee for Higher Education, said the state must face the "crisis in education" as have local communities.

Cohen, who was a member of the coordinating committee when it endorsed four-year schools for the two areas, said that Green Bay and many other communities provided adequate elementary and high schools.

News Imposed For Okinawa

NAHA, Okinawa (AP) — A news blackout was imposed today for the imminent arrival of a U.S. Marine brigade from Hawaii that will add more than 7,000 men to the American armed forces on Okinawa.

A spokesman for the 3rd Marine Division said plans for American newsmen and photographers to view the landings with escort officers have been canceled and no information will be made available regarding the movement.

The order for secrecy at this American logistical and supply center followed banning newsmen from the Da Nang base in South Viet Nam, now guarded by an expeditionary brigade from the 3rd Marine Division.

Mexican Police Arrest American

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Mexican police have arrested a U.S. citizen on charges of counterfeiting U.S. money.

Arrested at his Tijuana home Wednesday was George Van Patten, 35, formerly of Vista, Mo.

Police said they found a printing press, plates, counterfeit money, and six pounds of marijuana in the house.

Vietnamese Baby Born in Helicopter

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A 5-pound Vietnamese boy was born today at an altitude of 2,000 feet in the cramped confines of a U.S. helicopter.

The parents, a Vietnamese soldier and his wife, were being evacuated from a post about 40 miles southeast of Saigon. An Army medic on the aircraft, Staff Sgt. Charles K. Allen, 30, of Fort Stewart, Ga., delivered the baby.

Peking Ready To Send Troops Against U. S.

Offer Includes All Necessary Material To Aid Vietnamese

TOKYO (AP) — Red China declared today it is ready to send men to fight "the U.S. aggressors" in South Viet Nam if the Communist Viet Cong asks for them.

Peking coupled the offer with the announcement that it will send "all necessary material aid, including arms and all other war materials, to the heroic South Vietnamese people who are battling fearlessly."

"At the same time," it said, "we are ready to send our men, whenever the South Vietnamese people want them, to fight together with the South Vietnamese people to annihilate the U.S. aggressors."

One Step More

In Hong Kong, a Western diplomatic expert on Chinese Communist affairs said Peking's latest declaration appears to go only one step beyond what it has been saying all along.

The expert, who has just returned from a visit to Communist China, pointed out that the declaration said, "We are ready to send our men."

"The operative word is 'ready,'" he said. "There is no definite commitment that they will actually go."

"Peking has been very crafty in its phrasing of its threats on this question of sending volunteers into the Viet Nam war. It has been playing the brinkmanship game made popular by its hated enemy — the late John Foster Dulles."

The diplomat said he and other Chinese experts he has spoken with do not believe Peking will send troops into Viet Nam unless the United States sends

Volcanic Activity Suspected By Scientists in Alphonsus

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists poring over some of the 5,814 photos taken by Ranger 9 say they indicate the moon's crater rims may provide future astronauts with safer landing areas than would crater plains.

This possibility, advanced Wednesday night by scientists at a Jet Propulsion Laboratory news conference, was based on evidence of possible volcanic activity shown in pictures televised by Ranger 9 Wednesday.

Alphonsus, in a highland area near the center of the face of the moon, is the site of red flashes which some astronomers have interpreted as hot bases escaping through fissures in the lunar crust.

Volcanic Activity — Dr. Gerard P. Kuiper, chief of the scientific team, said many of the thousands of craterlets seen for the first time on Alphonsus' floor were not caused by meteorite impact. "They can only be the result of volcanic activity," he said.

Surprisingly, the smoothest and hardest areas on the moon seem to be crater rims — where they are spots apparently level enough for landings — and ridges found on crater floors, Kuiper said.

Kuiper said he believes the floors of large craters and many of the moon's broad plains are composed of solidified frothy lava which might collapse under the weight of explorers.

"It might well be better to look to the crater walls for potential landing sites," Kuiper said.

Wide-Angle Lens

The pictures released Wednesday night were taken by cameras other than the one which televised 200 wide-angle photographs live over networks during Ranger 9's final plunge.

The closest picture, taken with a narrow angle camera from a height of 3 1/2 miles, showed pock marks two to three feet across.

Dr. Eugene Shoemaker of the U.S. Geological Survey at Flagstaff, Ariz., said there were at least three types of these craterlets which were not caused by impacts of meteorites.

Some might once have been small volcanoes, he said. Others

Congress Gets New Plan for U. S. Customs

Johnson Wants To Eliminate All Patronage Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson formally submitted to Congress today a plan to reorganize the Customs Bureau and eliminate all its patronage jobs.

The reorganization will take effect unless the House or the Senate votes to disapprove it within 60 days.

In announcing the plan over the weekend, Johnson said it would permit the 175-year-old Customs Bureau "to modernize its activities and establish strong regional and district supervisory positions."

In a special message today, Johnson told Congress elimination of jobs now held by presidential appointees in the customs service would save a million dollars a year in salaries. He estimated that tightened management controls envisioned for the bureau "will make possible a net annual saving of $9 million within a few years."

Patronage Plums — The jobs that would be eliminated are collectors of customs, controllers of customs, surveyors of customs and appraisers of merchandise — long-time patronage plums.

"Incumbents of abolished offices will be given consideration for suitable employment under the Civil Service laws in any positions in customs for which they may be qualified," Johnson said.

Under the reorganization plan, all customs field activities would be supervised by six regional offices that would supplant 113 independent field offices. In addition to the regional offices about 25 district offices would be established.

Johnson noted this would produce a net reduction of more than 50 field offices.

The six new regional offices would be in Boston, New York, Miami, New Orleans, San Francisco and Chicago. A proposed timetable calls for opening the San Francisco office Sept. 1, with the others opening next year.

"The jobs of collectors in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands would not be affected. They are named by the secretary of the Treasury."

Specialist Called For 'Burma Surgeon'

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — A Burmese heart specialist was flying today to the hill town of Nankham to treat Dr. Gordon Seagrave, the famed "Burma Surgeon," with special equipment flown from Bangkok.

Seagrave was reported in a coma in his jungle hospital 800 miles north of Rangoon. It is five miles from the Red Chinese border.

Tun Shenn, Seagrave's administrative assistant, told newsmen in Rangoon the 68-year-old doctor could not be moved.

Early-Bird Effort GOP Progressives Are Pooling Forces

Astronauts Returned to Cape Kennedy

U.S. astronauts will raise his hatch in space, to prove the pressure suits are space-worthy, and he may step out into space.

Prime Duty
One of the prime duties of Grissom and Young today will be to step into a flight simulator at Cape Kennedy and fly again by memory the critical points of Tuesday's trip to space.

Sure to be emphasized are the three maneuvers which changed the Molly Brown's orbit around the earth, and the re-entry period which landed the spacecraft 58 miles short of her prime target, the aircraft carrier Intrepid.

On the Intrepid Wednesday night Grissom, an Air Force major, and Young, a Navy lieutenant commander, made their first public comments about the historic flight.

Grissom told the carrier's 2,000-man crew and her officers at a ship's party that the flight was very successful, and "accomplished everything we wanted to accomplish."

First Difficulty
It was also on the ship that the first word came of the difficulty that Grissom and Young encountered during their more than 45 minutes aboard the Molly Brown, bobbing and pitching in four-to-five foot waves in the Atlantic. Grissom became seasick and vomited into a plastic bag. Young also became nauseous.

Young alluded to this in his remarks to the Intrepid's crew. He told his fellow Navy men: "I'm sure glad you guys could see your way clear to pick us up."

And, he said about the spacecraft Molly Brown: "It's a wonderful spaceship — but not much of a boat. It's got pitch, heave and roll."

Grissom became ill after 28 minutes in the wildly rolling spacecraft which obviously was not at home in the sea. A space agency spokesman said that in sea tests earlier with the spacecraft, seasickness was common, striking one out of each pair of astronauts in hour-long tests.

Receive Plaques
The two astronauts received plaques and other mementoes from the Intrepid's crew, and late Wednesday afternoon, each got his turn at the ship's helm, steering the 40,000-ton carrier as she plowed through the Atlantic.

The medical debriefing turned up nothing startling, the doctors said. Both men were proclaimed in fine shape, with no residual problems from their flight.

But at the same time, the

Moon Crater Rims May Provide Landing Space

are dark and appear to be filled with material like volcanic ash.

Photographed for the first time were chains of small craters lying along deep cracks, or rills, in the floor of the large crater Alphonsus.

Gas Pockets
Shoemaker and Kuiper both said these probably resulted from collapse of gas pockets along the fissures.

Kuiper said the new photographs strengthened his belief that if there is any dust on the moon it is no more than a foot or two thick.

Other astronomers have speculated the lunar surface may be covered with dust deep enough to engulf a landing vehicle.

Dr. Harold Urey of the University of California at La Jolla cautioned that the actual composition of the lunar surface probably cannot be determined until spacecraft land with instruments to make a chemical analysis. This is scheduled to begin late this year with the launching of a series of larger vehicles called Surveyors.

Early Targets
Ewen A. Whitaker, who like Kuiper is associated with the lunar and planetary laboratory of the University of Arizona, noted that earlier Rangers were aimed at the broad plains of the moon because they were believed to be the best bets for landing.

"Now we find that the highlands appear to be much harder," he said.

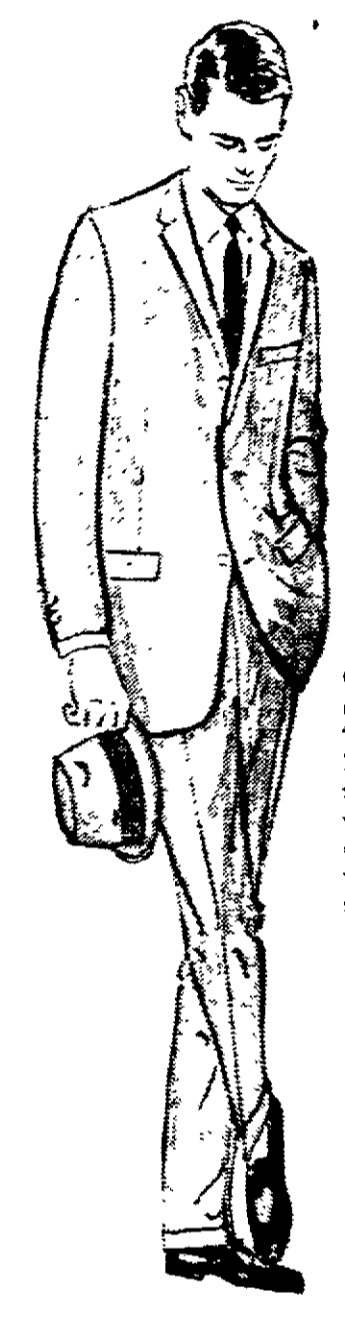

The scientists said they had had time to take only a preliminary look at a few Ranger 9's photographs. They will continue to study the other thousands for weeks and months in hopes of unlocking the secrets of the moon.

Employment at FWD Exceeds 1,500 Mark

Double Total of Two Years Ago for Clintonville Firm

CLINTONVILLE — Employment at FWD's Clintonville plant topped the 1,500 mark this week, according to Philip A. Larnino, vice president and general manager of FWD Corp. This is more than double the 633 employees of two years ago and approximately 600 more than a year ago, Larnino said.

John V. Vinquist was the 1,500th employee hired by the company. He was one of 21 men placed on the FWD payroll this week.

1,500 Employees

Vinquist, 21, is the son of Virgel Vinquist, superintendent of the city's water and electric plant, and Mrs. Vinquist, a junior high school teacher. He graduated from Clintonville High School in 1961 and later served three and a half years with the U.S. Air Force. He was last stationed at the Yokota Air Base, Japan as an Airman 2-C with the 41st Armament and Electronics maintenance squadron when he received his discharge.

FWD Corp. now has more than 1,900 employees at its various plants. The firm's annual payroll now totals in excess of 9 million and the backlog of business on the company's books is in excess of $25 million, Larnino added. The firm plans to hire an additional 50 men at its Clintonville plant during April.

Police to Confiscate Altered Bicycles

KAUKAUNA — City police have been ordered to pick up bicycles which have been altered in such a way as to create a hazard after receiving complaints about youngsters turning the bikes upside down and extending handlebars.

Normal bicycles can be considered a hazard to both pedestrians and the cyclist, noted police, and those changed in design are even more hazardous. Police will hold parents of cyclists responsible for permitting youngsters to carry on such practices.

Expects Board to Do 'Best They Can' in Redistricting

County Association Counsellor Warns Court Retains Power to Act

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — The county boards of the state will "do the best job they can" to comply with the legislature's requirement for a reapportionment of county board districts to assure quality of representation in county government, the long-time political counsellor of county governments of the state says.

A. J. Thelen, executive secretary of the Wisconsin County Boards Association, made the forecast as the Legislature completed action on the historic measure requiring adherence to the "one man, one vote" principle in the organization of county boards for the first time since the organization of the county system of government in the early 19th century.

Thelen also admonished the counties to act carefully, and with an awareness that the State Supreme Court has retained jurisdiction in the county reapportionment litigation which led to its decision of a year ago directing the Legislature to set up a new county districting law.

Nov. 1 Deadline The court set a deadline of Nov. 1 of this year for action by the Legislature, and said that in default of legislation through the ordinary legislative process, it would act under its own powers to achieve county redistricting.

Thelen said that some counties will find it more difficult than others to rearrange their supervisory districts within the four classes of county board sizes set up in the new legislation, and ranging from a maximum of 47 supervisors for the larger counties, to 21 for those of smaller population.

He said he is also advising his clients that if any county falls short of meeting the equality of representation mandate in a reasonable way, there is likely to be a resumption of litigation. In such an event, he said, there will probably be legal actions against individual county boards in the local courts.

Expects Tolerance

The veteran manager of the association's legislative affairs also said he expects a fairly tolerant attitude by the courts on probable variations from strict mathematical accuracy in setting up new supervisory districts. Some rural spokesmen asked for amendments to the new bill to permit as much as

Petitions Ask Referendum On Appointive City Offices

Group Opposes Law Taking Appleton Clerk, Treasurer, Assessor, Attorney Off Ballot

Petitions calling for a referendum to determine whether four Appleton city posts should remain elective were distributed at a meeting attended by 24 persons Wednesday night at the First National Bank.

The Committee for Election by Voters of Appleton City Officials, formed last week, opposes the charter ordinances recently passed by the city council making the posts of city clerk, treasurer, assessor and city attorney appointive.

Unless petitions for a referendum are filed with the clerk's office within 60 days from March 20, the ordinances will automatically go into effect. The committee needs a minimum of 1,450 signatures on each of the four petitions; circulates, each covering one of the appointed charter ordinances.

The petitions call for a referendum at the April 5, 1966 city election.

The petitions ask "shall the charter ordinance of the City of Appleton be amended to permit the mayor to appoint the (name of post) pursuant to a charter ordinance adopted by the city councilmen" March 17. The proposed amendment being "a charter ordinance to permit the mayor to appoint the (name of officer)." 65 Distributed

More than 65 petitions were distributed to the persons attending, including 10 to City Atty. Fred Froehlich.

Policy Restricting Aid to Air Carrier Airports Opposed

Head of State Commission Says Federal Plan Needs Amendment

BY DICK LYNES

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

EAU CLAIRE — Federal government policy in restricting third level and air taxi service aid monies primarily to airports was opposed and extended services to communities that have a potential and a need for such service.

Jordan indicated that general aviation airports, such as the new Outagamie County Airport in the Town of Greenville seems destined to become, "may be out in the cold" in 1966 for federal aid funds.

The new $3.8 million airport will open April 4 and a second cross-wind runway, possibly as long as 6,000 feet is expected to be built this year.

Outagamie County has applied for federal aid funds to help finance the construction.

Aid Prospects

"The trend at the moment," he said, "appears to be to channel all the available money to those airports that serve substantial volumes of passenger traffic at hub airports primarily."

"The Federal Airport Act," he said, "was adopted in 1947 to develop a nation-wide airport system adequate to serve the various aeronautical needs, and it was limited to any classes or categories of airports."

Jordan called for amendment of the Federal Airport Act.

"It appears," he said, "that the solution is to amend the act to the extent necessary to guarantee the same degree of local, state and federal cooperation in the development of our national system of airports."

"In the coming months the future of the Federal Airport Act will be determined anew to a large measure," Jordan said. "The outcome will be dictated

He Writes Uncle Sam

Money Isn't Everything (?) But... Appleton Serviceman Wants More

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

An Appleton man in the U.S. Air Force eight months is bucking for a merit raise.

However, it remains to be seen whether Uncle Sam will heed the plea of 2nd Lt. James R. Long, stationed in Wiesbaden, Germany.

Li. Long expressed disenchantment with the Air Force pay plan in a tongue-in-cheek letter to the President's Special Panel on Federal Salaries, Washington, D. C.

Copies of his "gripe sheet," along with a rundown of his weekly budget, were also sent by Li. Long to U.S. Senators William Proxmire and Gaylord Nelson, and Rep. John F. Byrnes.

$2.92 Deficit * Li. Long who received his commission July 1, 1964, is now receiving $289.08 from his "employer." He claims the living expense for himself and his wife is $292 a month—making for a $2.92 operating deficit.

In his communique to the Panel on Federal Salaries, Li. Long left no doubt he thought his pay should be commensurate with his credentials.

He pointed out that he holds a bachelor of science degree in business administration and a law degree from Marquette University and the State of Wisconsin has admitted him to practice law.

"In spite of this apparent average intelligence, I am having trouble figuring out my budget as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force," Li. Long lamented.

Calling attention to his attached budget, Long said an item for rent was not included because his quarter's allowance in Wiesbaden would cover the expense of his one bedroom apartment.

Long's weekly budget consists of food, $15; cleaning supplies, $3; laundering and dry cleaning, $5; upkeep (repairs, light bulbs), $2; bathroom accessories, $2; public transportation (to take pregnant wife to doctor), $2; lunch expenses, $3.50; newspapers, stationery etc., $1; postage, 50 cents; church, $1; haircut, 75 cents; officers' club dues, 50 cents; hairdresser, $1; life insurance, $10; mandatory social engagements, $1; tuition, $3; taxes, $7; maternity clothes, $2; gas and oil, $7.50; maintenance, $4; and auto insurance, $1.25.

Long also listed the Red Cross, gifts, entertainment, travel, charity, savings, series E bonds, fund, purchase of furniture and purchase of automobile with a question-mark behind each.

"You will see there are 32 items in my budget," the young lieutenant explained to federal authorities.

"Any increase I may get would generally be divided equally," Li. Long continued. "For example, a $64 per month increase would give me an emergency fund of 50 cents per week. This is a problem."

Li. Long said his life insurance payment was high but it would provide his wife with a $400 a month income. "I have been able to survive for the past eight months only because I received financial help from my father," he advised. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Long, route 1.

Li. Long told the presidential panel his wife is expecting

Appleton Utility Bill Clears First Hurdle

Assembly Committee Okays Water Extension Proposal

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The Assembly Judiciary Committee has recommended approval of a water utility extension bill sponsored by the city of Appleton, but in such a way as to suggest that there may be difficulties ahead for the measure.

The bill asked by the city would over-ride the policy of the Public Service Commission which requires cities to serve service if it moved out.

However, Nikolay said he recognized the towns or so-called "tax islands" would have to be in a position to provide service to its residents, including dissenters are Democrats and industries, without having to do so.

May Need Changes "There is nothing wrong with the bill in principle but it may require some changes," Nikolay said.

An attempt may be made to work out amendments to meet objections of Nikolay and others who have said that the bill in its present form might encourage cities to discriminate in the acceptance of non-resident water customers connections.

Avoid Discrimination Asked today to elaborate on his position, Nikolay told the situation to develop in which municipal utilities would discriminate by granting requests and denying others. Nikolay said it would be unfortunate, for example, if an industry leaving a city to locate in a nearby town or village was told by the municipal water utility that it would not get service if it moved out.

He predicted a revised bill would pass the legislature. Appleton had the bill prepared qualifications and later answer to voters questions.

A John L. Artt, constable, will present a report explaining the advantages and disadvantages of expanded police protection for the town.

Kaukauna Chapter Membership Meeting Set for April 29

KAUKAUNA — Ballots are being prepared by the Chamber of Commerce for mailing to members prior to the annual membership meeting to be held at 6:30 p.m. April 29 at Van Abel's, Hollandtown.

Members are to vote for four directors and return ballots to the Chamber of Commerce office prior to the meeting, thus permitting tabulation of votes and announcement of winners at the dinner. Candidates include Harold Feller, Norbert Gerend, Eugene Lange, Carl Runte, Thomas Tomis and James Witt.

Directors whose terms expire include Paul A. Hietpas, Robert Roloff, Robert Kindler and Carl Runte. The latter was appointed for 1-year to fill an unexpired term of a director who resigned, thus he is eligible for re-election.

Dinner Tickets Tickets for the dinner are to be mailed members next week while additional tickets will be available at the Chamber of Commerce office. Guest speaker will be Wilbur Reuk, Sun Prairie, unsuccessful candidate for United States senator on the Republican ticket last fall.

Well known in the business, farming and educational fields, he is a member of the State Chamber of Commerce and is expected to talk on the business climate in the state today. Master of ceremonies will be W. A. Baer, superintendent of power for the Kaukauna Electric and Water Utility. A cocktail hour will precede the dinner.

Grand Chute Voters to Hear Town Candidates

Farmers Urged to Study Proposed Agriculture Bill

Rural Life Director Speaks In Kaukauna

KAUKAUNA — Fox Valley Farmers were urged Wednesday to acquaint themselves with details of the proposed presidential farm bill when it is presented to Congress soon and then express their views to the national legislators from Wisconsin.

The proposal was advanced by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward O'Rourke, national director of the National Catholic Rural Life Conference (NCRLC). Des Moines, principal speaker during St. Isidore Day ceremonies at Holy Cross parish here.

Msgr. O'Rourke warned that changes in education were coming much slower than technological advances in agriculture. He noted how farmers had responded well in being able to produce more, but reaped few benefits from the new productivity.

Farm income is too low, he said. Farming requires double the capital investment per individual than is required in most industries, he noted. "Farm income from all sources is about 60 per cent of what others earn," he said.

Since the 1930s half the farm population has left the farm for other work, he noted. Msgr. O'Rourke cited Dr. Wilbur Wil said the same thing could be done on local and county levels. Outagamie spiritual advancement is from federal farm programs, he said. He used this as the basis for remarks concerning continuation of federal programs. "It would be hazardous to curtail them when farm income is already low," he said. He noted that President Johnson has indicated intentions of substantially cutting the agriculture budget.

The national director praised the Food for Peace program. One and a half million tons of surplus commodities were distributed to the world hungry by the NCRLC last year.

Msgr. O'Rourke expressed fear that the shipping of surplus commodities overseas would be sharply cut if the present program goes through.

Federal surpluses are being reduced to slice federal storage expenses.

The national director said there is a job to do locally to improve conditions by adapting the rural areas development program and the war on poverty.

One aim would be to develop local industry which could hire the farmers being forced to leave the farm, he said. The monsignor warned of the danger of allowing youth to enter the labor market without proper skills.

Common Policy The national director noted that recent private discussions had been held with national farm leaders and conference officials in an attempt to the city, he noted. Msgr. O'Rourke said the same thing could be done on local and county levels. Outagamie spiritual advancement is from federal farm programs, he said. He used this as the basis for

Police Told to Aid Business Deliveries

Recommend Warnings, Consistent Violators Will be Ticketed

Appleton police were tolders made deliveries to stores Wednesday night to "bend over between 7 a.m. and 9 a.m. backwards" to assist truckers daily, it would prevent parking in the downtown district.

After listening to a delegation Chief Wolff said on one hand of truckers and deliverymen in his department received from the council chambers at the city plaintiffs from the truckers when hall, the joint public safety they got tickets, and on the committee-parking commission other, motorists were critical group adopted a motion calling when they saw trucks double or for maintaining a status quo overparked downtown.

It was generally conceded the recommendation is for downtown area presents a spe- cific problem to truckers cause of the lack of alleys or overpark in metered zones, behind several business estab- lishments.

Truckers and city officials agreed also the problem would be compounded once the recon- struction of College Avenue gets underway.

Members of the committee and parking commission sug- gested the truckers help the city in arriving at solutions for some of the parking and loading problems.

Truckers to Advise The truckers agreed to meet, conduct a study and then make recommendations to the public safety committee.

"We will welcome your rec- ommendations," commented Ald. Robert Stumpf (9th), com- mittee chairman. "By working together maybe we can iron out some of the problems."

Representatives of various trucking firms said they were required to make downtown deliveries at all times during the day, and advised city officials their drivers have been instructed to obey the parking laws at all times.

They admitted, however, when no parking or loading zones are open, it is necessary to double park to make deliveries.

Explore Fads, Fallacies in Health Field

Health fads and fallacies costing Wisconsin residents an estimated $20 million a year will be the target of a state- wide conference in Green Bay on Thursday, April 8, sponsored by the State Medical Society of Wisconsin.

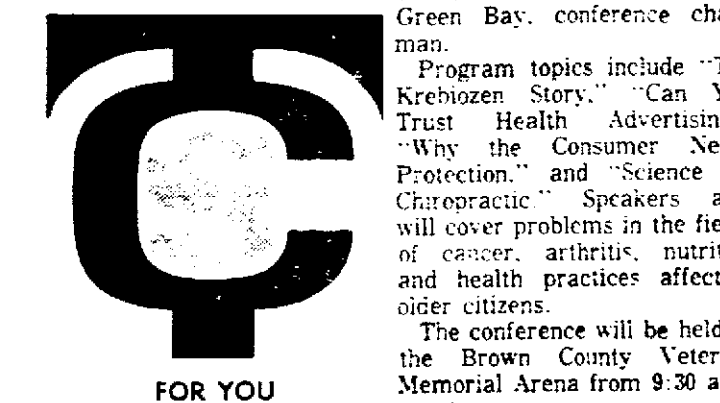

Major objective is to alert the public to the dangers of health fads. "Creating a public aware- ness of these health schemes is our surest way of combating them," said Dr. J. A. Killins, Green Bay, conference chair- man.

Program topics include "The Krebiozen Story," "Can You Trust Health Advertising," "Why the Consumer Needs Protection," and "Science vs. Chiropractic." Speakers also will cover problems in the fields of cancer, arthritis, nutrition and health practices affecting older citizens.

The conference will be held at the Brown County Veterans Memorial Arena from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Urge Early Stops In a previous report, Wolff and Planner-Traffic Engineer Walter Rasmussen said addi- tional loading zones were not warranted downtown. They did suggest, however, that if truck-

New Coins Will be of Nickel-Covered Copper

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Before the end of this year, Congress will cut the 173-year-old link between silver and our coins. Early next year, billions of brand new silverless dimes, quarters and 50-cent pieces will begin to flow into circulation throughout the nation.

The U.S. Treasury's decision

When the official news breaks, the prospect is that coin hoarders will scramble for silver coins—betting on a future rise in the price of silver.

In less than a year, hoarders and collectors grabbed more than 200 million new "Kennedy" 50-cent pieces. In two years the Treasury's supply of silver dollars has plunged from nearly 100 million to only three million today.

Painfully Hard

To prevent mass melting of silver coins Congress may be forced to pass a law forbidding hoarding and melting. While such a law would be painfully hard to enforce, it is unlikely that most of today's hoarders, who are operating legally, would be willing to turn "criminal."

On silver dollars a final decision has not been made, but two alternatives are obvious. One would leave them where they are, simply end new days. For the blunt fact is that the Treasury is running out of silver. Exhaustive studies emphasize that the Treasury simply cannot afford to use this precious metal in our soaring coin production and it must turn to substitute metals.

What will the new coins be like? When will they appear? What will happen to today's billions of silver coins? Here are details.

"Sandwich" Coins

Our new dimes, quarters and half-dollars will be made of a "sandwich" of cupro-nickel around a copper core. The "sandwich" is favored over hundreds of other metals because, first, cupro-nickel is inexpensive and durable. Second, new coins using it would be exceedingly difficult to counterfeit.

Third and crucial, expensive experimentation shows the coins would be "accepted" by the nation's 45 million vending machines, and there would thus be no need for brutally costly remodeling of machines to reject slugs.

The new coins will be modern, shiny, silver-colored and probably will have the same designs as today's dimes, quarters, half-dollar. If you've been to France or Italy, you'll be prepared for the looks of our new coins. Certain French and Italian coins are made of a similar cupro-nickel. They'll also resemble our own five-cent pieces.

Target Date

The Treasury's likely target date for introduction of the new coins is next January. It can't begin to switch its production to the silverless coins before the end of 1965.

Later, the Treasury would gradually withdraw today's silver coins, and sell the silver to industrial users. It probably will take two to three years before the new coins become more plentiful than existing coins—and it'll probably be a decade before silver coins disappear from circulation.

Old Man Boyle Defines Middle Age for Unsure

BY HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — What is middle age? According to the dictionary, it is "the period of life between the ages of about 40 and about 60."

Like most dictionary definitions, this one is crass, unimaginative and downright unhelpful. For it clearly implies that, if middle age ends at "about 60," then old age must begin at about 61.

This is rampant nonsense. Call a woman of 61 an old lady and she'll scratch your freckles; call a man of 61 an old man, and you'd better duck fast.

The government starts doling out financial lollipops at 65, but does that necessarily mean aged — we're really old? Hardly. Even at 70 an individual hates to admit he's elderly. He may admit he's elderly, but he'd probably rather just say he's "getting on in years."

Your Attitude

Age isn't altogether a matter of either the calendar or how you look. Many skinny little babies at two weeks look more antique when they yawn than does a man at 75.

Middle age is determined by your attitude toward life — by how you feel and what you do — as much as it is by the number of your birthdays.

Here are a few signposts that let you know you are middle-aged:

Instead of playing singles at tennis you always play doubles. Every time the stock market goes up a few points you start figuring how rich you'd be if you'd only bought a few shares back at the end of the second World War.

You've tried all the new wonder drugs and find that none of them work in your case.

Forget Grip
When you meet an old fraternity friend from college days and he gives you the secret grip, you forget how to return it. They don't have winters like they did in the old days, but it does seem to rain more often now.

On Saturday afternoons in spring you'd rather sit in the back yard and watch a bird feed its young than go all the way out to the ball park to see a game.

You mail more get-well cards to friends than greeting cards. Shoes feel heavier than they used to. So do snow shovels. So do you.

Critical of Women

At the seashore you'd rather lie on the beach or go for a walk than plunge in and battle the waves. They get rougher every year.

You get more critical of women. When you see a pretty girl, your admiration is tempered by a cautious suspicion that her paint job probably hides a bad disposition.

When you see a group of noisy teen-age youths approaching, you consider crossing to the other side of the street. No telling what kids will do these days.

The print on the medicine bottles is harder to read. If you drop a penny on the sidewalk, you bend over and pick it up. This is a dead giveaway: nobody under middle age — except very small children — bothers to pick up a penny anymore.

Recognize these signs? Then face it, man: You're middle-aged — no matter what the calendar says. So make the best of it.

Land Sought For Water Tank At Kaukauna

Plan Commission to Recommend Sale of 1 Acre at School Site

KAUKAUNA — The planning commission is recommending to the common council the sale of one acre of land near the new school site to be used for the construction of a 200,000 gallon water storage tank.

The Electric and Water Utility, pointing to the rapid growth in that section of the city, feels another storage tank is necessary to insure an adequate water supply reserve. The acre being sought is located in a wooded area behind the proposed elementary and junior high school building. Cost of construction has been estimated at $70,000.

In other action, the commission recommended rezoning of five lots, owned by Donald Mayo in the S. Park subdivision near the proposed school, from class A to class B residential. This would permit multiple family dwellings in the area.

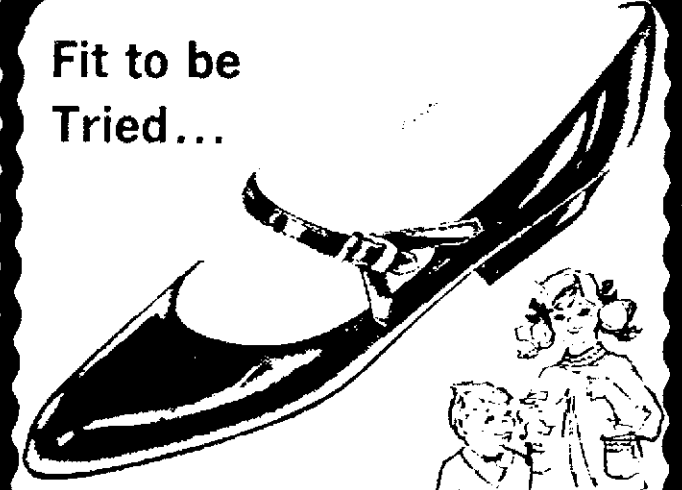

Rezoning Approved

The commission also approved similar rezoning for a 105-foot strip of land east of Sullivan Avenue as requested by the board of education. This property is also located near the new school and may be utilized as parking area.

No objection was voiced to a request by a rural couple to have land rezoned from agricultural to commercial. The property is located within three miles of the city on County Trunk KK and is under city jurisdiction. Property owners wish to develop the area as a drag strip, toboggan and ski slide area.

No action was taken on a request of Martin Weyers to have property at Tobacco and Oviatt streets rezoned from heavy industrial to residential.

188 New Cases Opened in '64

County Guidance Center Reports Yearly Activities

Year end report of the Outagamie County Community Guidance Center shows that 188 new cases were opened during 1964.

Of these, 100 were children and 88 adults. In the children's distribution, 64 per cent were boys and 36 per cent girls, while the adults were divided 44 per cent men and 56 per cent women.

Some 75 per cent of the new cases came from Appleton, 10 per cent from Kaukauna, 3 per cent from Kimberly, 4 per cent from Little Chute and 8 per cent from other parts of the county.

Although the center can charge fees up to $20, more than 75 per cent of the cases were handled without cost to the recipients. Average fee charged was $5.50.

Individuals come to the center on their own or on referral from schools, physicians, churches, lawyers, hospitals, welfare agencies and other bodies.

Dr. H. G. Cooper, medical director of the clinic, resigned during the year and was replaced by Dr. Denton Engstrom. Dr. Joseph Weissler and Dr. Keith Keane, along with Dr. Engstrom, work part time at the clinic.

A general education meeting is being planned by the Community Guidance Center Association and the center for some time this spring. No date has yet been set.

Rogers' Bill Seeks Aid For Disabled

Assemblyman William Rogers (Dem.-Kaukauna) announced today that he was introducing a bill that would "apply the provisions of the Homestead Exemption Act to permanently and totally disabled persons".

The provisions of the Homestead Exemption Act, enacted in the 1963 legislature, provided property tax relief to qualifying persons 65 or over, Rogers said.

"Under my bill, the basic provisions would remain the same. The permanently and totally disabled would merely be included along with the elderly."

"It was within the Wisconsin tradition of humane government to provide property tax relief to our senior citizens," Rogers said, "and it is within this tradition to extend the program to our totally and permanently disabled."

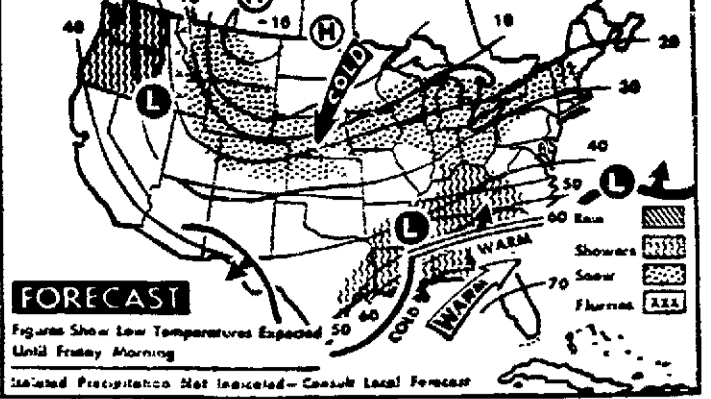

Among the major provisions that would apply to the disabled would be restrictions preventing those receiving state aid and those earning over $3,000 a year from inclusion in the program.

Weather in Nation Still Snowy, Cold

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation's weather pattern remained mostly on the wintry side today, with more unseasonably cold, snow, sleet and rain.

The winter season ended last Friday but temperatures were below normal in nearly all sections of the country. They ranged up to more than 20 degrees below seasonal levels in northern parts of the Midwest where the mercury dropped to 20 below zero again today. Seasonal marks were reported in the Gulf Coast region, the far Southwest and along the Pacific Coast.

In Alaska, Fairbanks reported temperatures of 45 Wednesday compared to the average normal high of 10. It was 55 in Juneau and today's 40 at Anchorage was higher than in some Southern cities. Snow was scarce at Ft. Wainwright. The annual ski review scheduled for Saturday was canceled because of no snow.

A collision of warm moist air from the Gulf and cold air from the North set off rain storms from the Carolinas to Kentucky and Arkansas. North of the rain belt freezing rain pelted along the Ohio River.

Light snow fell on the snow-covered sections of the southern Great Lakes and in the north central region. A disturbance along the Colorado-New Mexico border caused snow from the central Plains to southern Utah and northern Arizona. Three inches of snow fell in a two-hour period at Flagstaff, Ariz.

Much of the Midwest is blanketed with heavy snow, with snowfalls daily for about a week.

In Chicago, snow amounts for March neared the record of 22.4 inches and also snowfalls for the season were near the record of 66.4 inches set in 1951-52.

Heavy fog, with near zero visibilities, shrouded areas along the Gulf Coast from the Florida Panhandle to Texas. Below zero cold covered areas

Cumberland High Teacher Dies of Crash Injuries

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Cumberland High School teacher injured in an accident en route to the state WIAA basketball tournament last week died at St. Joseph's Hospital at Marshfield today. His death brought the 1965 Wisconsin highway toll to 179 compared with 204 one year ago.

Mathew Lofy Sr., 39, guidance director at Cumberland High School, was injured seriously on a week ago today in an accident at Tomah involving eight cars and a bus. He was transferred from a Tomah hospital to Marshfield where he underwent amputation of a leg below the knee during the weekend. A kidney failure developed and he died this morning.

Son Serious

Lofy's son, Mathew Jr., 14, remains in serious condition. The accident occurred while Cumberland basketball fans were driving to Madison to watch the Cumberland team play in the state high school tournament. Highways were snow covered following an overnight storm.

Constitution Could Allow Dictatorship

Congressional and High Court Actions Set Precedents

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
WASHINGTON — Will the American Constitution — now endangers the lives of unsuspecting arbitrarily transformed motorists. Penalty, by Congress and the Supreme Court without regard to the customary amending process — be utilized some day by a future President to build a dictatorship within a centralized government in Washington?

All the provisions of the Constitution could be subordinated and rendered obsolete by a series of statutes passed by a majority of both houses of

Lawrence

Congress and signed by the President. Only three provisions of the Constitution for instance, a majority of the electoral votes really need to be invoked allegedly to justify an assumption of power by the federal government which could diminish, if not altogether wipe out, virtually all the rights of the states. The three devices which are to a large extent in use already are as follows:

1 The phrase "to regulate commerce among the several states," as written in the Constitution, has been used by Congress to pass legislation controlling the business and economic affairs of the nation, irrespective of state lines, as well as the social life of the people. This power is not only being asserted in housing, education and in employment practices, but is being enforced through the granting or withholding of federal funds to particular localities.

2 The phrase "equal protection of the law" in the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution has already been cited as authority for intervening in any state where a local statute happens to be disliked by any pressure group which, through demonstrations or threats of violence is able to gain the support of a majority in Congress.

3 The Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution, which declares that the right of citizens to vote shall not be denied or abridged" on any state on account of race or color, now is being construed as giving Congress the power to control the whole election process by passing a few laws. This could mean the removal of all qualifications for voting except those which happen to suit the party in power.

These epochal changes are being put into effect in certain respects already, in disregard of the amending process prescribed in the Constitution. But the argument made is that the methods are in keeping with "the spirit of the times" and that "the end justifies the means" because the objective is a worthy one.

Public Opinion
The present Supreme Court, composed of a majority with no previous judicial experience, has in recent years been approving this process of changing the Constitution. The big question is: When will the public insist on the use of the method prescribed in the Constitution itself for amending that document?

After the downfall of Hitler, this correspondent happened to be talking with a prominent professor of a German university who had lived in Germany throughout the whole period of the dictatorship. When asked why he and his fellow citizens allowed Hitler to come into office and extend his power by opportunistic interpretation of the constitution, the professor replied:

"We were indifferent, and didn't sense what was coming. We were too much concerned with our own affairs. We in the educational world were preoccupied with our own pursuits. We took it for granted that everything being done was for a worthy objective. We didn't realize what we were getting into until it was too late."

Today it would be relatively easy for an autocracy to emerge in America. The power of the Chief Executive permits him at his discretion to allocate cooperative and to refuse those sums to the states which do not go along with the will of the Chief Executive.

Members of Congress are submissive because their own elections are controlled by pressure groups whose power is bound to be increased as all voting restrictions are about to be removed. President Johnson has already suggested that anybody over 18 years of age

Stolen Lights Found by Sheriff's Department In River Near Iola

WAUPACA — Two flashing warning lights which were taken March 8 on the back road to King while it was blocked due to high water, have been found in the south Branch of the Little Wolf River near Iola, according to the Waupaca County Sheriff's department.

The theft of the lights left a dangerous section of highway unguarded. Sheriff Loran Frazier said The lights are being checked for fingerprints.

Sheriff Frazier pointed out the severity of such a theft since it is a fine up to $2,000 Court without regard to the and imprisonment up to 10 years, he said.

Never in American history has so much power been concentrated in the federal government, which is nowadays virtually directed by the one man who occupies the highest office in the land. He can insure his own re-election by bestowing favors on the political bosses of the large cities especially now that electoral votes of most states can be controlled by a few persons with powerful organizations behind them. This has been made easier by the decisions of the Supreme Court compelling a reapportionment of the states, so that power will be lodged hereafter in the big cities and their bosses. It takes only a few such cities to control a majority of the electoral votes of the country.

U. S. Intends to Make Big U. N. Contributions In Spite of Delinquents

BY MALCOLM W. BROWNE
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. jet bombers and fighters flew heavy sorties against suspected Viet Cong positions inside South Viet Nam today. But no air strikes against North Viet Nam were reported. Vietnamese and U.S. Air Force planes had struck against targets north of the 17th Parallel daily for the past four days. One of today's strikes by Air Force B-57s and F-100s was against a suspected major headquarters of the Viet Cong in western Tay Ninh Province. 60

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States intends to go ahead with large contributions to the United Nations despite the failure of the General Assembly to lower the boom on its big-power delinquents, U.S. sources said today. This means U.S. payments of about $200 million this year to the United Nations and related agencies, regardless of whether the Soviet Union, France and others in arrears pay their assessed debts.

Tipoffs Cutting Effectiveness

WASHINGTON (AP) — Advance tipoffs may have reduced the effectiveness of some U.S. and South Vietnamese air strikes against targets in Communist North Viet Nam, sources said today.

They said there is reason to believe that South Vietnamese Communist agents and sympathizers have been able to obtain information on impending strikes and to radio word to North Viet Nam.

One official said "there are too many hands" involved in preparing the strikes.

This makes it easier for Viet Cong adherents in the South Vietnamese government, military and communications structure to get wind of the operation being planned, he said.

Sources said U.S. authorities had been urging the South Vietnamese government to screen its personnel more carefully and stringently.

miles northwest of Saigon. Another was in Communist-controlled Binh Dinh Province, 290 miles northwest of the capital.

Authorities announced that two Americans were killed during the week of March 14-20 and 22 wounded. The South Vietnamese suffered 100 dead, 275 wounded and 95 missing or captured.

435 Killed
Military spokesmen said 435 Viet Cong were killed and 90 captured. No figures are available on Viet Cong who may have been wounded and carried away.

Communist China's announcement that it is ready to send "volunteers" to South Viet Nam when the Viet Cong asks for them brought no official comment in Saigon and no sign of uneasiness in official quarters here.

The possibility of another massive Chinese involvement, such as that in the Korean War, has been included in all military calculations here since 1955.

In Canberra, Australian Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies backed the United States in its policies and actions relating to South Viet Nam.

Large Settlement
Menzies issued a statement replying to a letter published by several Australian Anglican Church bishops urging negotiations to achieve an "honorable and peaceful settlement."

Senate Speech
President Johnson was urged today by Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., to put "the strength of his office" behind a workable financial formula for the United Nations with which the Soviets can agree.

Street Fight Snowballs Into Racial Melee

One Brooklyn Youth Killed, Another Wounded

NEW YORK (AP) — A Brooklyn street fight between two boys erupted Wednesday night into an interracial melee between a dozen teen-agers.

Three youths were arrested and charged early today, one with homicide in the stabbing of Perry Peterson, 16, a Negro.

Joseph Cannizzaro, 17, white, booked in Peterson's death, police said.

Joseph Cannaro, 17, white, was listed in fair condition at St. Catherine's Hospital with a knife wound in the back.

Harry Johnson, 16, Negro, was charged with felonious assault in the wounding of Cannizzaro, police said.

The fracas began after a fist-fight between Vaughn Bernard, 16, Negro, and Chris Dugan, about 16, white, according to Detective Arthur Sabewicz.

Bernard suffered a black eye, the detective said, and then pulled a knife on Dugan. Bernard was later charged with attempted felonious assault.

At the flash of the knife, about five Negro and five white youths who were watching the fight became participants, Sabewicz said.

Cannizzaro was stabbed first, and later Peterson. The latter, bleeding from a knife wound in the abdomen, stumbled in an apartment house hallway and knocked on a door, crying.

"Help me! I can't breathe!" He collapsed at the feet of a woman tenant who opened the door.

The dead and wounded youths and the three who were charged all lived in Brooklyn.

with North Viet Nam, a country which has shown it will be bound by no agreement?" Menzies asked.

In a prepared Senate speech, Aiken said U.S. efforts to force Russia to pay its peacekeeping assessments have "collapsed like a punctured balloon."

Aiken said it would "definitely be in our national interest" if Johnson would "instruct his representative to the United Nations to reconcile our position with the Soviet and French position on the assessment of members for peacekeeping functions."

The basic reason Washington plans to go ahead with its large U.N. contributions is that administration strategists rate the U.N. system too important for U.S. foreign policy interests to let it founder. A feeble United Nations, they say, is just what the Communists want.

The United States wants a bigger say in how the taxes voted by the General Assembly are spent — and thus, too, regardless of whether the backsliders pay up.

Article 19 of the U.N. Charter states that any member owing more than the equivalent of two years' assessments shall have no vote in the General Assembly.

The Soviet Union is about $60 million in arrears and would have to pay about $22 million to get off the two-year list covered by Article 19. France owes about $16 million and would have to pay about $15 million to get off the two-year list.

Indonesia Takes Over Oil Firms

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesian supervisory teams have been installed at the headquarters of three foreign oil companies seized last Friday by President Sukarno's government.

The teams, picked by the government, were installed in separate ceremonies Wednesday at the Jakarta offices of American-owned Stanvac and Caltex and Dutch-controlled Shell Oil.

Officials said a supervisory team will be installed later for Pan American, also seized last week after Communist-led demonstrators demanded that the government take control. Pan American is doing exploration work only and has no Jakarta office.

Cardinal Meyer Still Doesn't Know Nature Of Malignant Tumor

CHICAGO (AP) — Albert Cardinal Meyer is still unaware of the malignant nature of the tumor removed from his brain Feb. 25, a Mercy Hospital spokesman said Wednesday.

"Nothing would be gained by telling him," the spokesman added. "What is important is that the doctors know of the malignancy."

The cardinal is in "fairly good shape," considering what he has undergone, said the spokesman.

Physiotherapy treatment is being administered to the prelate to tone up inactive muscles, the spokesman said.

Federal Trade Commission Studies Car Tire Hazards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission is considering ordering the nation's tiremakers to tell the public of automobile tire hazards, a government source says.

The possibility of a "disclosure of hazards" order, described by a spokesman Wednesday, arose after the FTC listened to some highly explosive testimony during a two-day hearing in January.

Such an order could touch off a controversy similar to the future over whether the tobacco industry should be required to display warnings that habitual smoking may injure health.

National Scandal
Sen. Gaylor D. Nelson, D-Wis., said in a speech prepared for the Senate today the 800-page transcript of the tire safety hearings documents a "national scandal in automobile tires," and should be made public.

Nelson said the transcript, which the FTC does not intend to print, includes expert testimony that:

— Many new cars come equipped with tires inadequate even for normal use.

— Six-passenger sedans with big trunks are tested for tire purposes with only three passengers and no luggage.

— Sizes stamped on tires do not tell the actual size and were never intended to do so.

— Ply-rating labels have "no understandable meaning."

— There is no way a motorist can choose the right tire.

Mother, Teacher Testify

Prosecution Concludes in Trial of Youth in Platteville Coed's Slaying

LANCASTER (AP) — John Treglown was quoted Wednesday as saying, "Oh, my God, why did I do it? Why did I do it?" shortly after a Platteville State University coed was shot and on the verge of collapse to death in the Student Union when taken from his car.

The statement was attributed to Treglown by Lancaster Police Chief Mel Gillen, one of the final state witnesses before the prosecution closed its presentation in the first degree murder trial of the 20-year-old Benton youth.

Treglown has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity in the slaying of Kathy Moan 19, of Belvidere, Ill., Dec. 8 Circuit Judge Richard Orton is hearing the case without a jury.

Taunted Teased
The first defense witnesses—Treglown's mother and a former teacher—pictured him as taunted and teased through his school years and unable to make close friends even though he sought them.

An unsigned statement in which Treglown described how he met Miss Moan in 1963 and "took a liking to her" was put in evidence Wednesday by Grant County Dist. Atty. James Halferty.

Gillen and Lancaster Patrolman Frank Kuchor related how they pursued a blue 1959 model car because it fit a broadcast description of the slayer's car,

She said he wanted friends "but had no close friends."

Benton High School teacher Mrs. Theda Curwen, who had Treglown in her classes for four years, testified he was taunted and teased by other students and he felt he "was unhappy all the time."

Another officer, John Heer, related that he found a throwing knife and a .38 Smith & Wesson handgun in Treglown's car. Treglown has said in his statement he had the gun because a former high school classmate, Carl Crabtree, had threatened to take a snow tire from Treglown's car unless a loan was repaid.

Crabtree had testified Tuesday that he encountered Treglown on the campus and a $10 debt was repaid. Crabtree said that Treglown then went to the Student Union and emerged minutes later with a gun in his hand.

Treglown's mother testified that her son began having trouble with other students when he was in the sixth grade. She said they picked on him and several times he came home with injuries received in fights. He wanted the family to move to Platteville, she said.

All-Weather Highway

War Delays Road In Mid, Far East

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Fighting in Burma and South Viet Nam is delaying completion of the long dreamed of all-weather highway from the Middle East to the Far East.

Called the Asian Highway, the land network would connect countries of one of the world's most populous regions. It would serve more than 600 million people.

When completed, the Asian Highway will be no superhighway. In many places it will be no more than an old camel caravan route that has been graded and paved.

But delegates to the annual meeting of the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East (ECAFE) were told today the highway is a project of great importance, increasing trade and bringing the people of Asia together in better understanding.

Drive Possible
The ECAFE report said it is already possible to drive from near the Turkish border to the Burma border in fine weather. By the end of this year, this will be an all-weather road.

Because of its war with rebel bands, Burma's government has closed its frontiers to international motor traffic. Travel over the final eastern portion through South Viet Nam to Saigon also is dangerous because of the war there.

Two main roads are in the making — A-1 (A for Asia) and A-2 — that will eventually connect Europe and the Far East.

Subsidiary roads bring the total network to 24,000 miles. Delegates were told that 90 per cent of the roads in this vast network are already in passable condition and that the missing links in A-1 and A-2 total only 6 per cent of their length. Most of this is in Burma, and until peace is restored there they cannot be worked on.

Special funds from the United Nations have helped finance some sections. But generally, the countries through which the roads pass are fixing their own roads.

One section, through the mountains of Afghanistan, is being built on a 50-50 basis by the Soviet Union and United States.

The report said it is costing $500 million or $600 million to bring all priority routes up to minimum standards. Cost of the entire network is estimated at $2 billion or $3 billion.

Unemployment Claims 33,354 in State

MADISON (AP) — The State Industrial Commission reported today that 33,354 claims for unemployment compensation were filed in Wisconsin last week. A week earlier the total was 35,413.

Minding Your Business

By Cyrus Barrett, Jr.

Blue-Chips Are Tip-Off to New Franchise Boom

DEAR CY:

In 1965, I am definitely going to get my own business by taking on a franchise. What's the very latest on franchising? What do you see ahead for men and women hoping to get a business of their own in this way? —E. PRICE

DEAR PRICE:

In 1965, you will see entry of more blue chip corporations into the franchise field. Establishing divisions to franchise present products and services, in many instances, will take precedence over acquisitions. This year, the following companies are expected to aggressively franchise foods and services: Winchester Gun Clubs; S. C. Johnson (auto wash and wax systems), Pet Milk (Stuckey's Gift and Food Shops), Swift and Company (Dipper Dan Ice Cream Shops), Sears (catalog store) and the state's stores, Montgomery Ward (catalog store).

DEAR CY:

Eating has always been a problem of mine and I love it! Maybe it can now lead me up the golden path to a profitable sideline. Know anything about a new, portable, foreign-made steam bath which comes complete with a folding chair and plastic enclosure? Where can I get information on this sort of thing? —EAT AND STEAM

DEAR EAT AND STEAM:

"International Management" magazine recently reported on a Japanese manufactured steam bath. It can be lugged around by gourmets; perhaps it's the one you hunger for. The unit requires only two cups of water and 20 minutes to develop steam. Check into the article (and how much steam is required to push an overweight person upstairs to steam bath). Contact both your doctor and Eugene Miller, McGraw-Hill Publishing Company, 330 West 42nd Street, New York City. —CY

DEAR CY:

"Shifty and lazy as sin." If there is a better description for my divorced husband, I have yet to hear it. I feel he cheated on our joint income tax returns. Suppose he escapes the country. Will the internal revenue agents still connect me with our past tax situation? —LUCREZIA

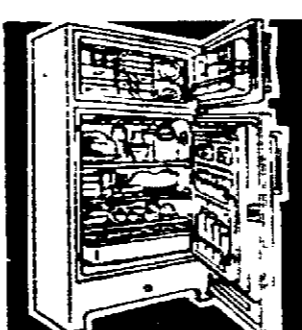

DEAR LUCREZIA:

Sorry about your spouse. Let us hope you can throw a net over him. Your divorce, however, was from a man... not from joint income tax returns. According to the men at IRS, what hath been joined together (and filed) cannot be cast asunder. —CY

'Hobos' Get in the Swing

The Hobos had a hoe-down Saturday evening. They turned the Moose Hall into a 'jungle' and set about to the business at hand — making mulligan stew and square dancing.

The annual Grand Squares' party brings all the members out in appropriate costumes. Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Nelson gave instruction in round dancing. Lyle Leatherman served as caller.

The committee was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Centner, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bauer and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Larsen.

The Grand Square 'hobos' hung clothing on the line and constructed make-shift tents at the event Saturday evening. Checking their line, above, are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Loberger. Mrs. Chet Lewis, at left, admires the "beard" of Mrs. Clair Baumann. Partygoers had lessons in round dancing before beginning regular square dancing. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Opera Star Denies Feuding Rumors

BY JOY MILLER
NEW YORK (AP) — A prima donna with a fragile ego always feels safe with George London. That's because the Canadian-born bass-baritone has perfected a modus operandi: "My most potent weapon in dealing with female colleagues is flattery," he says. "A few well-chosen words and they're eating out of your hand."

London can make even the world's most formidable temperament, Maria Callas, purr. Callas returned to the Metropolitan Opera Friday after an absence of seven years, but London has been rooting for her since her previous visit. It was then that London sang the villainous Scarpia to Callas' Tosca.

"Knowing how sopranos try to upstage you, I made up my mind to be very pleasant to Callas," he recalls. "You can't fight a man who is so obviously admiring."

Wished Callas Luck
The night of that first performance he walked across to her dressing room to wish her luck.

"She was overwhelmed. She kept saying 'How nice. I'm not used to my colleagues doing this.'"

"My next premiere at the Met, singing in 'Tales of Hoffman,' she sent me a wire wishing me luck."

This season London isn't on the stage with Callas. In May he is singing his most famous role, "Boris Godunov," in Russian with the Boston Opera. In September he'll start rehearsing a starring role in "Aida," a musical version of the play expected to open on Broadway in November.

In spite of London's way with sopranos, he had had his share of reported feuds. All without basis he says.

One supposedly was with Zinka Milanov. She was singing that "Aida" with London as her father, the captured Ethiopian King. In the middle of one particularly grim scene London suddenly broke into a broad grin. "Milanov's breaking him up," the knowledgeable ones in the audience said, sotto voce.

Mentions Daughter
"Actually," explains London, "we hadn't rehearsed together and hadn't seen each other since the previous season and she whispered to me, 'How's the new baby, George?' The mention of my little daughter made me break into a smile. That's all there is to that one."

And the tiff with Callas during a television rehearsal of "Tosca"?

"They misunderstood her sense of humor," says London. "After she murdered me in the second act I fell so close to the desk legs she couldn't pass to cross the stage and pick up the two candelabra that Tosca places next to the dead Scarpia. Ida Lansing, Dubuque, Mr. Van So Callas stopped and announced: 'There are just too many legs around here.'"

"We all laughed and after that I fell so she would have a room to pass. Yet the day after the telecast it was reported we had fought, and no amount of denying it would convince people otherwise."

Men Also Suffer Pregnancy Pains

Some men experience actual sympathy pains while their wives are pregnant, says a London psychiatrist.

A study made by Dr. William Trethowan of 500 married men showed that one in nine complained of such ills as toothache, stomach pains, and morning sickness. The symptoms were most acute immediately before their wives gave birth.

Remove Stains

The inevitable spills and splatters that occur at the dinner table should always be removed before laundering. Grease stains, one of the more difficult stains to remove, should be covered with a layer of corn starch and the tablecloth rolled up until washed so the grease will be absorbed. Then launder as usual.

Your Problems

Pets Help Youths Develop Sense of Responsibility

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I need a growup to stick up for me. Will you be the one? Our next door neighbors are moving out of town in a few weeks and they want to make me a present of their two hamsters.

My mother says I can't take the hamsters because they will smell up the whole house and also they hatch very often and we will have three dozen before we know it.

Our neighbors enjoyed the hamsters very much and they had them for almost a year. Also I don't think their house smelled any worse than anybody else's house.

I promised Mom I would take care of them and they would not get in anybody's way. She still says no. Please help me. — Pet less

Dear Pet: If your neighbors had the hamsters for almost a year and there are still only two, they are probably brothers.

I can't help you with the smell argument, because they sure do — but children learn a great deal from having pets. They also develop a sense of responsibility when they are given a chance to care for living creatures. I hope your Mom will reconsider and I also hope that she doesn't get mad at me for putting her in one heck of a spot.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My business' (construction) took a turn for the worse. I found myself unable to finance my freshman daughter's education for the remaining two quarters of the year.

I asked my married daughter (whose education I paid for) to loan me the money to put her sister through. This married daughter now earns $5,300 a year teaching. Her husband makes $8,500 a year. They have no children and no debts.

Landers

Thursday, March 25, 1965 The Post Crescent C3

Her answer shocked me. She said, "If you can't afford to keep Ramona in school let her go to work."

When I was growing up we were taught to share and help each other out. I feel that my oldest daughter is selfish and short-sighted. Will you comment on family responsibility, please?

— Disappointed

Dear Disappointed: In many families, where there is real warmth and love, older brothers and sisters do help the younger ones through college. Unfortunately your family is not so blessed.

Your older daughter is doubly selfish. Not only did she refuse to help educate her sister, but she refused her father a loan.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a newcomer to your country for Ann Landers' booklet, and have a few questions which may seem silly to girls who have grown up here.

When my date calls for me and what should I do with him? If I am not ready, do I shout, "Please sit down," or what? If I am ready, do I ask him to be seated? If so, for how long? Should I encourage him to speak with other members of my family the first time he comes to our home or would it be best to wait until the second or third date? Should I offer him a cup of coffee?

Customs vary according to the country and I don't want to frighten a young man away with too much, or too little attention. Thank you. — San Fran

Dear Sam: A young man appreciates it if the young woman is ready when he arrives. If he shows up early, ask another member of the family to greet him and visit until you appear.

But speed it up, Toots. He did not come to your home to chat with your Aunt Tillie. Skip the coffee, and be on your way.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send a newcomer to your country for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Remodeled White House Styled With More Bathrooms

Did you know that there are 19 bathrooms in the mansion part of the White House, as well as two half-baths? All have ceramic tile floors, and 10 have ceramic tile walls. The interior of the White House was almost completely rebuilt during the administration of President Truman and the bathrooms were re-done at that time. Mrs. Millard Fillmore came in for much criticism when she put in the first bathroom, sometime between 1850 and 1853. Fillmore, like Truman, succeeded to the presidency from the vice presidency.

will prevent you from cutting into the stitching.

Q Are seams at the waistline always graded? Mrs. L.L.

A No, they are usually not graded.

Q When fitting a skirt, should all four seams be pinned and then fitted before stitching? Mrs. A.S.

A No. Only pin-fit the side seams. The front and back center seams should be stitched before fitting.

Q Must I use a press cloth for all fabrics? Mrs. K.M.

A You can press cottons on the wrong side without a press cloth. But one is necessary on all other fabrics.

Q How can I press gathers so they don't become flat? Mrs. J.G.

A Press into the fullness with the tip of the iron. Be sure not to form creases when doing this. Don't place your iron flat over the gathering.

Avoid Chilly Drafts On House Plants

The average house is on the warm side for most plants. But, if it is allowed to cool down at least 10 degrees at night, plants will take it much better.

Drafts are also important. Most plants do better if a little fresh air enters the house. But, don't let it blow directly on the plants. Drafts or sudden temperature changes shock plants. They are one of the chief causes of the red bracts falling from poinsettias.

Do not let the soil get hard. Loosen it periodically with one of those small hand tools made especially for patio and indoor gardening.

Finally, bear in mind that all plants must rest some time. They may not lose their leaves but growth does stop. With many plants this is during the short days of winter. During such periods water less frequently and, if possible, put the plants into a slightly cooler place.

Dye Lamp Shades

To obtain new color for your lamp shades, just fill the kitchen sink with hot tap water and add a pretty pastel dye solution. Rotate the shade with your fingertips until desired shade is developed. It usually takes less than 10 minutes.

Unrealistic Make-Up Fades
 The last vestiges of unrealistic make-ups, those frighteningly peach shade lips and faded lips, departed on the winds of winter. There's a new look and it has the quality of a born-beauty, the same fresh springtime radiance just as should be!
 Faces that appear naturally lovely are far more beguiling than trumped up facades. And lipstick, sun-kissed to a near-peach shade. Then check the effect. Is it akin to nature's best efforts? If not, try and try again.

Today's Etiquette
 BY LOUISE DAVIS

LET'S BREAK A RULE
 Dear Louise: Is it permissible for a woman who is divorced and was permitted by the court to restore her maiden name to use the prefix Miss? A learned man took exception to this recently when I was obliged to give my name and state whether that is so at all ages from teen to no telling.

Fashion models, already espousing the make-up, have found that it is not necessarily achieved by using fewer cosmetics, but rather through new textures and shades. Here's a rundown on the main elements:

Pastel Foundation
 Start with a translucent foundation in a pastel beige, warmed with peach tones. If more coverage is needed, apply a second film. Two thin coats are preferable to a single masky one.

Powder with a shade that lies invisible on the skin.

Highlight the cheekbones with a blusher, using the gentlest in the honeyed-peach color and the gentlest strokes.

To set off the eyes, smooth ivory-beige shadow on the lids from lashes to brows. Complete the scheme with brown or charcoal liner, brown or black mascara. Finish with glowing pink intended misrepresentation.

er single, married or divorced. He said, "If you have ever been married, you are Mrs. even if you do use your maiden name." Any number of my friends and family would like to know what is proper.

Miss Davis Answers:
 The gentleman who made that statement that you are Mrs. is correct according to the strictest rules of etiquette. However, his theory is pretty rigid and almost passe. The majority of divorced women, including those in the top brackets of society and the adopt the Miss when the courts restore their maiden names. The fact that you were married, is no secret and are now Mrs. Smith again, is no secret and you are not fooling your newly made friends that you are divorced. So I see no misrepresentation.

Johnson, Like FDR, Relishes Presidency

BY JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Warren G. Harding said "God, what a job," but President Johnson has the same feeling about the problems at home.

And he has said very little about them after 16 months in office, compared with all he has said about the problems at home.

Historians put Roosevelt, who started out promising a "New Deal," among the great presidents. It seems clear, from the sweep of his programs and his promises of a "great society," that Johnson hopes to be in the same group.

Johnson, always impressed by Roosevelt, is operating in much the same manner: action, bold and broad proposals, and expressed concern for people.

The direction of the two men is the same even though Roosevelt took over in the depths of depression while Johnson began his four-year term last January when, to use his own description, the economy was "excellent."

Johnson even uses some of the words, goals, and ideas of his mentor.

"This generation of Americans has a rendezvous with destiny," Roosevelt said, in accepting renomination in 1936. Johnson in his inaugural last January said "for every generation there is a destiny."

In his first inaugural Roosevelt said "this nation asks for action." Johnson promised "action" in his inaugural. Starting out in the presidency, Roosevelt said "our primary task is to put people to work."

Johnson in his economic report this year put employment first among this country's "unfinished tasks."

In his 1933 inaugural Roosevelt rattled off a list of programs he wanted Congress to approve. In his inaugural Johnson rattled off almost 50 proposals he wants action on.

Roosevelt created an American social revolution out of the desperation of depression, although actually he was only trying to bring the long tardy United States abreast of policies reached by European countries years before.

In doing so the wealthy and aristocratic Roosevelt antagonized business and was regarded as a radical and traitor to his class by the well-to-do but he was basically a conservative trying to catch up with the times.

Johnson learned from Roosevelt's mistakes in dealing with big business and is courting it as zealously as labor although his programs won't have the same wide and far-reaching effect on business and the rich as Roosevelt's.

But then Roosevelt was dealing with a crisis that Johnson doesn't face.

Switched Ground Johnson, who switched ground during his 23 years in Congress, so far has escaped any flat tags of left or right although, for his strong support of civil rights, segregationist Southerners may consider him a traitor to his Southern background.

But the programs Johnson has handed Congress are generally in the tradition of the New Deal: medical care for the aged, aid to education, antipov-erty, housing, and others.

Johnson had far more experience in government and with Congress than Roosevelt and the experience is beginning to show.

For instance, where Roosevelt was able to get through some of his programs in a moment of national desperation, but did badly later, Johnson, under no such pressure, is making astonishing progress and hopes to continue it.

Only Time Only time will tell whether Johnson and Roosevelt had something else in common: much less concern about foreign problems than domestic ones.

If Roosevelt had shown more awareness of what was building up in Europe before Hitler went to war, and more leadership in trying to thwart it or get prepared for it, history might have been different.

Because of his long service in Congress, almost all of Johnson's experience has been in domestic affairs, not in foreign

Works Board Delays Opening Of Paving Bids

KAUKAUNA — Opening of paving bids by the board of public works, originally scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Monday, has been postponed until 6:30 p.m. April 5 due to weather conditions.

Heavy snow has made it impossible for bidders to determine the amount of preliminary work necessary prior to installation of concrete paving, according to Robert Natrop, city engineer.

The delay in bid opening is expected to give contractors an opportunity to study specifications and road beds more closely, thus assuring proper bids. The city seeks bids on approximately 22,450 square yards of 7-inch concrete and 6,925 yards of 6-inch concrete.

Utility Seeks Bids for Water Main Projects

KAUKAUNA — The Electric and Water department of the city is seeking bids for the installation of water mains with bids to be opened at 3 p.m. April 7 at a meeting of the Electric and Water Utility Commission.

Thursday, March 25, 1964

are available at the utility office. Sealed bids will also be opened for 13,300 feet of ductile iron pipe and cast iron fittings at the same time. Specifications for this material are also available at the office. Bids will not be considered or accepted without a performance bond of $8,000 and proof of workmen's compensation, public liability, property damage and special hazards insurance coverage.

New Holstein Man Pays $25 on Conduct Count

CHILTON — James Spetta, 39, route 2, New Holstein, was fined $25 and costs when he was arraigned before Judge D. H. Sebor on a charge of disorderly conduct. Spetta was arrested at his home on March 16 by Calumet County Sheriff C. J. Kosmosky.

The wrecking hammer is beating its devastating tattoo in the interests of Milwaukee's University. east side development project. The tangled web of four was the first permanent home of the Milwaukee Female College, two, of the Milwaukee Female College 113 years ago, and the temporary home of the merged Milwaukee - Downer College nearly 70 years ago. Those who care about local history have arranged that a bit of the building — specifically 1,000 cream colored bricks — are being rescued from the razing and transported to the Lawrence University campus for the creation of some kind of an outdoor beauty spot such as a planting tub or paved circle. The most significant fact about the building is that it was both the creation and the Waterloo of Catharine Beecher, who furnished Milwaukee Female College with its educational plan and early guiding genius. Miss Beecher was a member of a brilliant and unstable family of 19th century reformers whose members included the abolitionists Harriet Beecher Stowe and Henry Ward Beecher.

More Than Theoretician
Miss Beecher was more than an educational theoretician. She had definite ideas about school architecture, and she drew the plans for the Milwaukee Female College in the Gothic style, ornamented with pinnacles, arched windows and narrow brick buttresses. A sketch of the building illustrated her famous pamphlet, "An Appeal to American Women on their Own Behalf," in which she propounded for her plan not only in Milwaukee, but in several

XB70A Sets Two Aviation Records In Eighth Test
EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The huge XB70A supersonic bomber broke two aviation records — heaviest weight and continuous supersonic flight — in its eighth test flight.
A spokesman for North American Aviation said the craft took off Wednesday at the heaviest weight any airplane has ever flown — more than 500,000 pounds.
During its 100-minute flight it logged a record 80 minutes at supersonic speeds ranging up to about 1,400 miles per hour.
North American Aviation test pilots Al White and Van Shepard took the craft to a maximum altitude of 56,000 feet, the spokesman said.

schools she was then influencing. Miss Beecher's pinnacles proved a problem to local workmen, who derived no inspiration from the speed with which they were paid. "A number of pinnacles on the building have already fallen off," it was written in the fall of 1852 when the school was still under construction. "others are likely to fall, and we are consequently in much danger whenever there was a high wind."

In 1850, Miss Beecher decided that the time was ripe to add a domestic science wing to the school, and her fierce disagreements with the trustees over that building project caused her to virtually abandon Milwaukee Female College.

"Bowed Windows"
Miss Beecher held certain theories about ventilation and heating that demanded, to her mind, "bowed windows." She was a vigorous opponent of third stories and basements, claiming that "a family of girls keeping house for themselves in a third story was entirely destructive of the plan."

A Milwaukee-Downer historian has written: "Miss Beecher was now 60 years old, in dubious health, and her correspondence shows the growth of certain less fortunate traits. She always had a tendency to dominate in any activity in which she engaged, now she displayed an obstinate determination to have her own way to the last minute architectural detail, or to refuse all cooperation. Her letters to the trustees are curt, vehement, even rude in town."

Both as a school and as a hotel, the building has reflected the financial strains of its owners. There were all numbers of mortgages and liens on it. In 1883, the school property was actually sold for taxes, and one of the trustees had to reclaim it on a rental basis.

Charles H. Farrar spent so much of his own money on the building in his 15 years as principal (installing a new heating system, building a dormitory wing of 30 rooms, and repairing the school after a fire) that when he left Milwaukee a special subscription had to be raised to partially repay him.

Financial struggle or no, some extremely influential people were interested in the institution. Frances Willard, later national president of the WCTU, attended school in the building in 1856, and wrote a glowing account of the intellectual and moral tone. Milo P. Jewett, promoter and first president of Vassar College, became a trustee of the school when he moved to Milwaukee. Lydia Huntley, Stowman, a much-admired Victorian author, sent a gift of trees for the yard (they were promptly cut down) four years later to make room for a building addition.)

A string of the eminent Beecher family came and went as commencement speakers, along with the Rev. Samuel Fallows, a Lawrence alumnus, who was the only Wisconsin chaplain to attain the rank of colonel and command a regiment in the Civil War. He later was a national figure as a reformer and Methodist bishop.

In 1899 the school, by then Milwaukee-Downer College, moved to its most recent campus and the building became the Carlton Hotel. For a time it was quite fashionable with the carriage trade, but its fortunes declined and was taken over by the city for taxes. In 1942, the Carlton Hotel Corp. acquired it from the city for $30,000.

In the course of 11 decades, such structural modifications were made in the building that only the narrow brick buttresses could still be identified at the time of razing. Miss Beecher's educational plan was long since gone, but some of her bricks, transported 100 miles north, will recall a vivid, difficult, creative personality.

Difficult to Get True Red Casualty Figures

Viet Cong Deaths Hard to Determine, U. S. Officials Say

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Does anyone know for sure how many casualties the Viet Cong have suffered in the Vietnamese war?
Outside the Red guerrillas' high command, which isn't saying, confusion persists as to the statistics which would help to show who is winning what. Officers on the spot in South Viet Nam regard figures issued recently in Washington as too high. Among others, so does Sen Stephen Young, D-Ohio. There was skepticism in Saigon when the Pentagon estimated in a year-end roundup Jan. 6 that about 70,000 Viet Cong had been killed since 1961, against 20,000 South Vietnamese combat dead.

Then came a March 3 report to Senate committeemen by Gen. Harold K. Johnson, U.S. Army chief of staff.
"According to the best figures we can get — recognizing that the nature of the war is such that they may not be exact — about 75,000 Viet Cong have been killed so far. Our aviation operations have contributed materially to this success."
That report, like the Pentagon's January announcement, was based in part on statistics issued up to late 1963 by the Ngo Dinh Diem regime, which were never checked or authenticated by American authorities.
As a working rule of thumb at the time, lower ranking U.S. officers used to say "If you divide by five, you'll get the real casualties from the claims."
Normally two or more men are wounded or captured for every man killed in battle. The American ratio in Viet Nam is even higher — 26 missing and more than 1,750 wounded to 394 combat dead.

Small Force
So projection of the 7,500 killed figures could lead to a belief more than 200,000 Communist fighters had been knocked out of action. But the whole Red force apparently never has numbered that many men, whether recruited locally or snipped in from North Viet Nam.

A U.S. military spokesman in Saigon, questioned by AP correspondent Malcolm W. Browne, said:
Well I don't want to put words in the general's mouth, but I would say he was probably talking about killed and captured combined."
The spokesman said it is awfully hard to adjust the suspect figures from 1961 to 1963.

Running Ahead
"What can you do?" he asked. How are you going to find out what they were? Right now I think casualties are running ahead of what is actually being reported."

One yardstick is the assessment of Viet Cong manpower in a White Paper issued by the State Department Feb. 27.
Titled "Aggression from the North — the record of North Viet Nam's campaign to conquer South Viet Nam," it said:
"Hard-core VC strength now is estimated at more than 32,000, whereas it was less than 20,000 in 1961. Supporting the main force units are an estimated 60,000 to 80,000 part-time guerrillas and village-based guerrillas used for harassment and sabotage."

That coincides with U.S. and Vietnamese intelligence estimates available to newsmen in Saigon.
In fact the usual estimate of Viet Cong hard-core strength in 1961 was 18,000. But according to the official casualty figures 10,000 of the enemy were killed that year.
Even if such losses were widely dispersed among hard-core and irregular units that would suggest the Viet Cong entered 1962 decimated. In fact, they remained an effective force.

The estimate of hard-core strength rose in 1962 to about 23,000. And in that year according to the still official statistics, the Viet Cong suffered 21,000 killed. The death toll of 1963 also was listed as 21,000. The war's tempo has increased sharply since.
Not until last year were effective checks and balances applied to the field reports of results from air and ground actions in the U.S.-backed effort to beat down the Red challenge.

'Sound of Music' Film Deemed Another Hit

Well! Cast, Movie Created by Same Team That Made Musical 'West Side Story'

BY BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With American in concept and execution it was created by the same Century-Fox has a musical hit team, headed by producer-director Robert Wise, that made for top honors in this year's "West Side Story."

The last of the Rodgers-Hammerstein collaborations, "The Sound of Music" is the best screen version of their works. It's a wonder Hollywood doesn't make more musicals — as of this week, not one of the 37 films in production is a tune-film. The argument has been that musicals don't sell in foreign markets, but "West Side Story" disproved that.

With successes like the Oscar trio, a musical can justify its investment in this country alone. Further, the movie musical (as well as the Western) is something the American industry can make so superlatively that film makers of other countries don't even try to compete.

Perfect Example "The Sound of Music" is a perfect example. Although the story is located in Austria and the stars are English and Canadian, the film is essentially American in concept and execution. It was created by the same Century-Fox has a musical hit team, headed by producer-director Robert Wise, that made for top honors in this year's "West Side Story."

Area College Students On WLUK-TV Panel For Sunday Viewpoint

"Students View The World" will be the topic of discussion on WLUK-TV's Viewpoint series at 10:25 p.m. today.

Four area college students will discuss their opinions on world affairs, marriage, religion and other vital topics. The program will be presented in conjunction with the University of Wisconsin.

Included in the panel will be Miss Patricia Riley, Fox Valley Center, University of Wisconsin; Tom Casey, St. Norbert College, De Pere, David Moore, Lawrence University, Appleton, and Miss Carol Flaherty, Green Bay Center, University of Wisconsin.

Viewers are invited to telephone questions to the panel. Bill Vickery, assistant to director of the U. W. Green Bay and Fox Valley Centers, will serve as special guest co-moderator, with Donald Parrish, director of news and special events of Channel 11.

FDR Was Vague, Loose And Ineffective, Eden Says

NEW YORK (AP) — Britain's prime minister at the time of wartime Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden — now the Earl of critical of Roosevelt's relations with Stalin — contends Franklin D. with Stalin.

Roosevelt, he wrote, "was and ineffective" in his planning influenced by his conviction that he could get better results with Stalin direct" instead of through normal channels.

He blames President Roosevelt for most of the Communist-inspired troubles that have hit the world since 1945.

Specifically, Eden maintained that Roosevelt vacillated about Soviet control of Eastern Poland's postwar boundaries. Europe because, he contended, tacitly okayed the 1940 Soviet Roosevelt was no match for takeovers of Estonia, Latvia and Stalin at the negotiating table.

Lithuania, approved Soviet moves (later frustrated) into Roosevelt's behavior at the Yalta Conference in 1945 where, he no objections to Soviet take-overs of Finnish and Romanian territory.

Eden, who was later Britain's prime minister, said that Roosevelt and Stalin drew up a secret agreement about Chiang Kai-shek's China which violated the Little Wolf District will be closed April 2 while teachers' attend the Northeast Wisconsin Teachers Association convention conference "Eden gave no details of the agreement.

Boone, Mason Solve Hard Cases Today

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7:30 (Channel 4-5) — George Gobel is very winning in Daniel Boone, as a clumsy, kindly school teacher who doesn't see anything wrong in giving gunpowder to Indians. But Fess Parker disagrees, especially since Boonesborough's supply is nearly gone.

7-8 (Channel 2) — "The Case of the Careless Kitten" on Perry Mason is a better than average mystery with — hooray! — no courtroom histrionics. A long lost husband announces his return through a telephone call, but he plays hard to find.

7:30-8 — My Three Sons has another cute outing. Robbie, to impress his latest crush, agrees to be the singing mascot for her grandfather's horse.

7:30-8:30 (Channel 4-5) — Dr. Kildare proposes to Angie Dickinson, as "She Loves Me, She Loves Me Not" concludes, and she accepts. But there are little bothersome things about the girl.

8-8:30 (Channel 11) — Bewitched has a lovely scene that will hit home in any family where the husband has tried to teach his wife to drive. Samantha is definitely not a good pupil, so Darren hires a professional instructor.

8:30-9 (Channel 2) — In a budget-happy move (and one that TV Scout hopes is not a precedent) The Bailies of Balboa, for the second time, uses stock shots from earlier episodes to advance the slim story line.

8:30-9 (Channel 11) — Peyton Place is getting ready to introduce a new character, Dr. Morton's daughter Claire. But

Use of Gas in Viet Nam Has Led to U.S. Propaganda Loss

EDITOR'S NOTE — News officials doubt that their country's use of gas in Viet Nam is a nonlethal gas for use against guerrillas in South Viet Nam. Communist propagandists are expected to try to keep the issue alive in spite of vehement denials by Secretary of State Dean Rusk that the United States has engaged or ever intended to engage in gas warfare in Viet Nam.

A more serious problem, officials here believe, is that in allied and neutral countries some residue of suspicion is likely to remain in the minds of many people because denials and explanations seldom catch up with the situation in this news analysis.

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has suffered a worldwide propaganda defeat on the use of nonlethal gas in the Vietnamese war, and U.S. military commanders in Viet Nam to use noxious gases hereafter against guerrilla-infested villages in South Viet Nam.

The use of tear gas in such cases is officially considered more humane than bombings and gunfire, but the cost in worldwide public opinion now has to be considered.

Bad Blunder

That there was a bad blunder in the way the news initially was disclosed last Monday is generally agreed among Johnson administration leaders. An Army spokesman in Saigon said that there had been some experimental use of nonlethal gas against Red guerrillas. The gas was described as temporarily disabling. It was not sharply defined as the kind of gas sometimes used by police forces over the world against rioters.

The announcement touched off a worldwide furor which brought criticism and denunciation of the United States. Questions were raised as to whether the United States was violating a 1925 Geneva agreement outlawing gas warfare. Communist radios in Moscow and the Far East accused this country of barbarity and brutality.

The storm hit official Washington with stunning surprise. Apparently no one in high position had foreseen such an uproar or given any serious thought to the danger of raising the specter of gas warfare when various types of riot-control gas were sent to the South Vietnamese forces in mid-1962.

24 Hours
An initial explanation from the Pentagon began to develop the idea that riot-control gases but it took more than 24 hours to mount the U.S. counteroffensive.

On Tuesday Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara held a news conference to say that the gases used were essentially police-type tear gas and that they had been employed to save the lives of civilians among whom guerrilla fighters had taken refuge. He emphasized that the gases had been used only on two or three occasions. McNamara said the British had used such gases on Cyprus in 1956.

It was not until Wednesday, however, that Rusk held a news conference to come to grips with the main issue as it was finally defined here — the question whether the United States was in fact launching gas warfare against the Viet Cong.

Future Use

"The shadow of gas warfare has been raised in connection with these incidents," Rusk said. "That is not involved. We are not embarking upon gas warfare in Viet Nam."

As to future use of tear gas, Rusk said, "no new directives have been issued" to countermand authority to use it.

But he added: "The anticipation is, of course, that these weapons will be used only in like to have the United States make peace quickly in order to control or situations analogous to riot control."

Even as Rusk spoke, the U.S. effort to explain its position was beginning to show some effect. In London, three leading newspapers defended the employment of tear gas. At the Capitol here, after getting an explanation from McNamara, several senators spoke out to defend what had happened.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said use of tear gas to rescue captured Americans from the Viet Cong, or to overcome guerrillas hiding among Vietnamese civilians was justified.

More Humane

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, declared: "I think its use was more humane than the use of explosives in those instances and was perfectly justified."

"Any implication that our country used poison gas or intends to do so," said Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, "is a complete falsehood."

What caused the storm of protest? Several forces seemed to be involved:

1. A general fear in many foreign countries that the United States is expanding the conflict against gas warfare. Earlier and more general provisions to outlaw gas as a weapon had been included in treaties in 1864 and 1907.

In 1925 an international conference at Geneva wrote the international agreement which stands as the main document on this subject in international law today. The agreement was defined as a "protocol for the prohibition of the uses in war of asphyxiating, poisonous, or other gases, and of bacteriological methods of warfare."

The U.S. position is that the United States among others but not legally binding on this country.

U.S. Position
The U.S. position is that the United States among others but not legally binding on this country.

In Line
U.S. officials say, however, that the treaty's prohibition of gas warfare and its statement that use of gas weapons "has been jointly condemned by the general opinion of the civilized world" has been in line with American policy on the subject.

The legal argument advanced by officials in the present situation is simply that tear gas is different.

The U.S. legal case rests on the contention that the kind of gases used in Viet Nam, generally classed as "tear gas," have become in modern times a common and customary police method of dealing with riots in civilized countries, officials say, is generally accepted under international law as being legal.

Rusk hit on this point in his news conference.

Used By Police
"We are not talking," he said, "about a gas that is prohibited by the Geneva Convention of 1925, or any other international understandings about the use of gas; we are talking about a gas which has been commonly adopted by the police forces of the world as riot-control agents."

Rusk also touched briefly on another point which seems to baffle officials here. That is: Why is world public opinion so sensitive to what the United States does in Viet Nam but seemingly so indifferent to what the Communists do?

"Those who are concerned about those facts,"

3. A deep-rooted horror of gas warfare, dating back at least 50 years to the use of gas by the Germans in World War I.

4. The Germans first employed gas against French and British troops on April 22, 1915. They used chlorine gas, according to military records. Mustard gas, which was the type most commonly used in World War I, was largely responsible for one-third of the 272,000 casualties American troops suffered in the war.

A ban on Germany's possession or use of asphyxiating, poisonous or other gases for military purposes was written into the Versailles Treaty which formally ended the war. But that was not the first treaty prohibition against gas warfare. Earof the New Haven's passenger service, as the states seem suddenly to have discovered, they should have stopped taxing its property a long time ago."

Anderson also called the Rockefeller-Dempsey plan "incomplete and inadequate."

It proposed basically that New York and Connecticut each provide $5 million for buying new coaches and refurbishing old ones, the amount to be matched by $10 million from the federal government.

Additionally, New York's Westchester County and Connecticut would post $400,000 each toward maintenance costs.

Board Approves Improvements to Grignon Home

KAUKAUNA — Directors of the Grignon Home restoration committee voted Monday to paper two front rooms in the home and repaint the hall in an effort to add authenticity to the old home.

An investigation will be undertaken to determine whether some type of covering could be placed over the floors which would make it possible for visitors to see the nature of the flooring used in by-gone eras without damaging the wood.

Mrs. Faye Dooley, curator of Old Wade House, advised directors to the type of furnishings needed and changes which could be made in the home to make it more authentic and attractive to visitors. She also advocated a more extensive advertising campaign, tour programming, special promotions and souvenir sales.

Mrs. Joseph McCarty and Mrs. Lewis Nelson were named honorary board members and the Rev. Ernest Bartels was named to the board of directors.

U.S. Dist. Judge Robert P. Anderson gave the road permission Feb. 15 in New Haven, Conn., to seek authority from necessary government agencies to first curtail and then eliminate passenger service.

Public Interest

Anderson said in a memorandum accompanying his order: "If the public interest so urgently demands the continuance of the New Haven's passenger service, as the states seem suddenly to have discovered, they should have stopped taxing its property a long time ago."

Anderson also called the Rockefeller-Dempsey plan "incomplete and inadequate."

It proposed basically that New York and Connecticut each provide $5 million for buying new coaches and refurbishing old ones, the amount to be matched by $10 million from the federal government.

Additionally, New York's Westchester County and Connecticut would post $400,000 each toward maintenance costs.

The New Haven, though it operates in the populous and industrial northeast between New York and Boston, slipped into bankruptcy four years ago.

Its trustees said it could not maintain service through its own revenues because of rising costs and loss of freight to trucks. Trustees have gone to court and the federal government to curtail and eventually eliminate passenger service.

Commuters Hit

Hard hit would be 25,000 commuters who ride the line daily to their jobs in New York from New York's Westchester County and Connecticut's Fairfield County, a well-to-do suburban area north of New York City.

Commuters traditionally are home owners and pay local taxes accordingly.

If the commuter should leave, the impact on real estate values and local tax income can only be conjectured.

Isn't there some other way than rail to commute?

The first thought is to drive. But that would mean imposing 25,000 or so more cars into the traffic tangle that already throttles Manhattan.

Then there is the expense of driving — about $120 a month.

As for buses, the United Communities for Railroad Action, one of the citizens' "save the railroad" committees, says:

"Provided all franchise arrangements could be worked out, initial cost for buses and terminals would be approximately $100 million. And present highways are already crowded to capacity."

Fares Raised

The New Haven's trouble first was signaled when fares were raised regularly until they reached the point of diminishing returns. The fare now from New Canaan or Darien in Connecticut is $49.60 for a monthly commutation — more than double the cost 15 years ago.

Federal officials said March 10 they could not support aid measures proposed by New England senators because the bills called for too much federal participation and for operating subsidies contrary to long-standing federal policy.

This did not sound encouraging for a subsidy plan advanced Jan. 21 by Govs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and John N. Dempsey of Connecticut.

"Provided all franchise arrangements could be worked out, initial cost for buses and terminals would be approximately $100 million. And present highways are already crowded to capacity."

Fares Raised

The New Haven's trouble first was signaled when fares were raised regularly until they reached the point of diminishing returns. The fare now from New Canaan or Darien in Connecticut is $49.60 for a monthly commutation — more than double the cost 15 years ago.

Federal officials said March 10 they could not support aid measures proposed by New England senators because the bills called for too much federal participation and for operating subsidies contrary to long-standing federal policy.

This did not sound encouraging for a subsidy plan advanced Jan. 21 by Govs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and John N. Dempsey of Connecticut.

U.S. Dist. Judge Robert P. Anderson gave the road permission Feb. 15 in New Haven, Conn., to seek authority from necessary government agencies to first curtail and then eliminate passenger service.

Public Interest

Anderson said in a memorandum accompanying his order: "If the public interest so urgently demands the continuance of the New Haven's passenger service, as the states seem suddenly to have discovered, they should have stopped taxing its property a long time ago."

Anderson also called the Rockefeller-Dempsey plan "incomplete and inadequate."

It proposed basically that New York and Connecticut each provide $5 million for buying new coaches and refurbishing old ones, the amount to be matched by $10 million from the federal government.

Additionally, New York's Westchester County and Connecticut would post $400,000 each toward maintenance costs.

The New Haven, though it operates in the populous and industrial northeast between New York and Boston, slipped into bankruptcy four years ago.

Its trustees said it could not maintain service through its own revenues because of rising costs and loss of freight to trucks. Trustees have gone to court and the federal government to curtail and eventually eliminate passenger service.

Commuters Hit

Hard hit would be 25,000 commuters who ride the line daily to their jobs in New York from New York's Westchester County and Connecticut's Fairfield County, a well-to-do suburban area north of New York City.

Commuters traditionally are home owners and pay local taxes accordingly.

If the commuter should leave, the impact on real estate values and local tax income can only be conjectured.

Isn't there some other way than rail to commute?

The first thought is to drive. But that would mean imposing 25,000 or so more cars into the traffic tangle that already throttles Manhattan.

Then there is the expense of driving — about $120 a month.

As for buses, the United Communities for Railroad Action, one of the citizens' "save the railroad" committees, says:

"Provided all franchise arrangements could be worked out, initial cost for buses and terminals would be approximately $100 million. And present highways are already crowded to capacity."

Bragan and Spahn Rekindle Old Feud; Mets Level Braves

Jackson, Parsons Hurl New York To 5-1 Decision; O'Dell Bombed

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. Frank Bolling's double and Ed-die Mathews' single, Parsons held the Braves scoreless on four hits in three innings. The Mets got seven hits off Billy O'Dell, Bob Sadowski and Denver Lemaster.

While Spahn and Bragan scrapped at long range, the Mets and Braves clashed at close range, with the New York-ers taking a 5-1 exhibition victory. The Mets made the most of good pitching by Al Jackson and rookie Tom Parsons and seized on Milwaukee fielding failures.

Bragan said he didn't think that Spahn, who will be 44 in April, will win 12 games with the Mets this year. If he thought so, Bragan said, Spahn wouldn't have been sold to the Mets.

Spahn, a 20-game winner 13 seasons of his career, was 6-13 with the Braves in 1964. Mets' Manager Casey Stengel said it appears that Spahn has regained his form. "He is threading the needle again and he pitched five scoreless innings for me last Saturday," said Stengel.

Jose Torres Wants Shot At Patterson

Smoldering Grudge Against Former Friend, Stablemate

HILLSDALE, N.J. (AP) — If Jose Torres wins the light heavyweight title from Willie Pastrano next Tuesday night, he wants to step up into the heavy-weight class. Which is only natural — that's the way to boxing's big gold and glory.

But the 23-year-old Puerto Rican may be motivated by more than money and fame — a smoldering grudge against a former friend and stablemate.

"I think fighting Floyd Patterson would be beautiful," Torres said recently during a break in training. "It would sort of get even for what he did to Cus."

Cus is Cus D'Amato, former manager of both boxers who guided Patterson to the heavy-weight championship. He now is Torres' trainer, but has no official connection with Patterson. It is Torres' contention that Patterson proved less than grateful by dropping Cus.

However, there is more to Torres' antipathy toward Patterson than D'Amato. Insiders say he resented all the attention and success that went to Patterson when they were stablemates. And then there is the tale of the vanishing $100,000.

Torres was promised a shot at Paul Pender's share of the mid-deweight title three years ago, for a $100,000 guarantee. One day the money was supposedly as good as on the line — the next day it wasn't. Torres claimed the money was to have been loaned by Patterson.

"I thought he was my friend, but no more," said Torres.

Despite an impressive seven years as a pro and a 34-1-1 record, Torres is getting his first chance at a title in the match with Pastrano at Madison Square Garden.

Ironically, many in boxing think his progress was inhibited by D'Amato — because D'Amato was too cautious in picking opponents and because D'Amato's various feuds kept Torres out of certain arenas and away from certain potential rivals.

For example, Torres didn't fight in the Garden until last year — acting on his own.

Torres figures he can add 10

Rigney Sees Angels Giving Good Run at First Division Spot

Jackie Warner, Reichardt Keys To Better Hitting

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Angels, since their first season in 1960, have managed to improve from within. This year's hopes are $200,000 bonus baby Rick Reichardt and spring phenom Jackie Warner.

Manager Bill Rigney calls his pitching staff — led by Cy Young Award winner Dean Chance — "potentially a great one" and points out, "We think we can give the first division another good run."

How good a run it will be could be decided by the potential heavy hitting in the bats of Reichardt and Warner.

Reichardt is easily the better known of the two rookies, having signed probably the largest bonus contract in baseball history. He then produced satisfactory in the minors by hitting .292 at Quad Cities and .286 at Hawaii last season.

Surprise of Camp Warner has been the surprise of the spring camp with his lusty hitting.

Developing in the Angels' farm system, Warner broke through last season at Tri-Cities with a .279 batting average, 37 homers and 106 runs batted in.

However, the next step is the big one.

"Reichardt can run, he can catch the ball and he can throw," says Rigney. "He can do all the things he has to defensively. The big question is whether he can hit major league pitching on a consistent basis."

Both Reichardt and Warner will be battling for outfield berths with incumbents Jimmy Piersall, who hit .304 last season; ex-pitcher Willie Smith and Albie Pearson, the little Angel who tailed off to .223 last season.

The rest of the team is set with the exception of third base.

putting him in the low 180s, giving him more power and without losing speed. That would make him fairly light for a heavyweight — but perhaps he remembers Floyd Patterson isn't much bigger.

Celtics' Bill Russell Named NBA's Most Valuable Cager for 4th Time

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Russell, the bearded pillar while Sam Jones, first Celtics around whom Boston has built player ever to score 2,000 points, was in a season, finished fourth with named Wednesday the National Basketball Association's Most Valuable Player for the fourth time in five years.

The 6-foot-9 Celtic center was honored by a committee of the U.S. Basketball Writers Association. He was the first selection on all but one of 24 ballots. The announcement was made by sportswriter Joe Looney of the Boston Herald, chairman of the group's NBA committee, out the top 10.

Seventh Award Russell, taking over the full duties of captain he shared with Frank Ramsey last year, led Boston to its winningest season in league history—62 victories—and its ninth straight Eastern Division crown. The Celtics now seek their seventh consecutive third etc.. Russell amassed 283 NBA playoff championship and points to 156 for Los Angeles' Jerry West, only other player to pull down a first place vote.

West edged Cincinnati's Oscar. This is the seventh writers

NBA-MVP award Pettit won the first in 1959. Chamberlain followed in 1960, then came Russell's three in a row.

Others receiving votes, in order, were Bailey Howell, Gus Johnson, Hal Greer and Nate Thurmond, Willis Reed, Richie Guerin and Zelmo Beaty, Len Wilkens, Don Ohl and Guy Rodgers.

Previously the writers and sportscasters named Willis Reed of the New York Knicks as the NBA Rookie of the Year. He received 47 votes to 27 for Philadelphia's Lucious Jackson.

year was 4:39.4 — an all-time AHS sophomore record.

Returning senior lettermen, other than Miller and Dennis Brinkman, are Jim Dunsirn, sprints and high jump, Scott Hetherington, broad jump, Jim Lunzmeier, discus, Russ Kamline, pole vault, Gary Volkman, hurdles, Rick Peterson, 220, Steve Kasten, 880, and Bruce Witter, dashes.

Junior lettermen, other than Garrett, are Tom Maves, mile, Ron Brinkman, sprints, Ed Olson, hurdles, and Les Bowers, 440 or 880.

Junior letterman Gary McIntyre, the team's best shot-putting prospect, is lost through ineligibility. The status of three other lettermen — Gary Ahrens, Terry Krueger and Pat Gendron — is doubtful because of injury or part-time jobs. Alvin Hill, a promising sophomore sprinter, also may not be available to come out for the team.

AHS' winning coaching combination remains intact, with Herb Simon and Gene Vanden Heuvel assisting Kohlman.

From the pre-season vantage point, the mile run (with Garrett and Maves) and the high jump (with Miller and Dunsirn, 1-2 finishers in the conference last year) appear to be among the school's strongest events. Dennis Brinkman will make the 440 or 880 strong — whichever he runs.

AHS like other schools, is looking extra hard for quarter-milers this year, since the mile relay is taking the place of the medley relay (a pair of 220s, a 440 and an 880) on the WIAA program.

Appleton could be strong in the 880 if a good crop of cross country team runners comes through as expected.

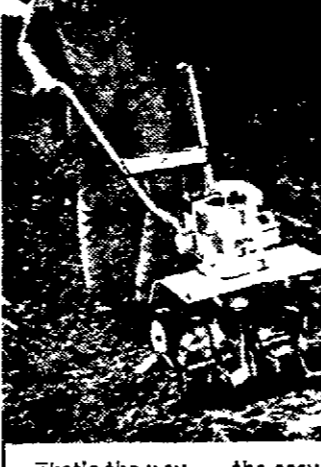

The greatest help appears needed in the 100-yard dash, the shot put, the hurdles (all of last year's top hurdlers are gone) and the broad jump (no depth behind Hetherington).

Among the top non-letterman prospects are senior Dick Boldt, junior John Boyce and soph Dave Romensko, in the weights. Dave Balsis, Bill Le Dain, Doug Wenzel and Randy Thomas and Dennis Schubring, in the distances. Dave Nowell, sprints and 440; Rick Miller, 440; Gerard Hendriks and Tom Gerrits, 440; Gary Vivoda, 220 and 440; Dennis Kray, 880; Paul Stoeger, 440 and 880; Larry Einspahr, pole vault, John Vogt and Don Pohlman, hurdles; Dale Schabo, sprints; John Griffith and Bob Dauner, high jump.

Several athletes from the basketball team will not join the track squad until next week. The field eventers are behind schedule in training because the gym has been used for other 273 sports.

Danger Signs Reveal Emotional Difficulties

BY JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D. pains. Why doesn't he do something for me?"

By now the question will have arisen in some readers' minds. That conflict comes rather "How do you now when you close to being typical of a have an emotional problem?" recurring condition. Emotional certain symptoms, whether you have gall bladder disease, heart trouble, muscle spasm, or plain old stomach-ache. Don't think this is easy, because it isn't. A medical checkup is advisable, first, because discomfort and nerves can be eased, second, because at that age periodic examinations are a good precaution for anyone. No, mental disease is not caused by menopause. Especially after all the heart attacks that have been passed off as indigestion by people who could have been helped by going to their doctors instead of futilely trying stomach pills.

If someone close to you has a radical change in temperament; or changes from being normally interested in other people and becomes chronically secretive and wants to avoid contact, or becomes perpetually gloomy and down in the dumps and is not concerned with anything—these are a few danger signs that can be serious. Many others are more immediately obvious.

Strangely enough, even today, a good many people don't become very alarmed, or not sufficiently alarmed to ask the doctor about it, until the patient is hearing strange voices, is imagining that everybody else is plotting against him, or is threatening suicide.

Many Suicides Yearly

Authorities agree that the 17,000 suicides reported each year are only part of the total number. Probably 10 times as many people threaten or attempt suicide.

There is no way of knowing exactly how many murders and other crimes, large or small, are rooted in mental illness, but the cost in human values is terrifying.

What about the more numerous but less serious small emotional problems? Before we can do anything about them, we have to admit that they exist. After that we have to get busy and correct them.

Let's take the case of the emotionally wound-up individual whose physical symptoms might be any of those we've already mentioned, or some that we haven't.

The doctor finds no physical cause for the complaint but tactfully suggests that if the patient will change his attitude towards life, or correct his living habits, or learn to be calm, he will lay the groundwork for a cure.

It's almost a comic-strip bromide by now, but the patient goes away musing resentfully. "The doctor said it was all in my head. But I really feel these

Factfinding Ordered For Labor Dispute in Water Department

Factfinding has been ordered by the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board in the labor dispute involving the Appleton Water Commission and the water department's unionized employees.

The WERB order was issued at Madison today on the basis of a petition filed some time ago by the local union of the Wisconsin Council of County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

Donald Lee, a member of the WERB staff, conducted an informal investigation to determine if the dispute warranted factfinding. He recommended that it did.

As a result, the board appointed Robert Mueller of Madison factfinder. The dispute centers around 1965 pay demands.

The necessary blanks were mailed to office seekers.

Several legislators have introduced a proposal to limit such country do not operate similar

The welfare department said the measure would reduce sales volume of the prison industries by more than half a million dollars, or more than a fourth and would have the effect of wiping out the state's profit on such production. The prison industries program recently has returned a net profit to the state treasury of about $145,000 a year, it was said.

Sure there's a difference between the luxury '65 Chevrolet and expensive cars

You can put most of it in your savings account

Maybe you've only seen them on the street so far. If so, come on in and see a Jet-smooth '65 Chevrolet right in our showroom. We think you'll do a double-take when you get up close enough for a look at that price sticker. Most people do. Because the major difference between this one and cars that cost quite a bit more is simply—price.

Take room, for example. Chevrolet has more of it than many expensive cars do. You get extra foot room with the new frame and forward engine design. And those handsome curved side windows are one reason for all of the extra shoulder room, front and rear.

And there's plenty of luxury. The smartly functional instrument panel is easy to read, puts everything at your fingertips as well. Color-keyed interiors feature tastefully rich fabrics and vinyls, foam-cushioned seating and plush deep-twist carpeting. And even the low-cost Bel Airs and Biscaynes include these luxury touches.

There's a great choice of power, from Chevrolet's economical, spirited 140-hp Turbo-Thrift Six on up. And that famous Jet-smooth ride is even better this year. A new Full Coil suspension, new wider tread and over 700 sound and shock absorbers work together to give you the feeling there's a foot of air between you and the road.

You can tailor the car exactly to your taste, too. Our catalog lists nearly 200 ways to do that—and our salesmen can show you how easily your present car and realistic monthly payments will have you driving a beautiful '65 Chevrolet nearly as quickly as you've read this message.

Toward 'Humane' War

The announcement that the United States Air Force has been using a form of nausea gas against the Viet Cong in Viet Nam is bound to be played up by the Communists and some so-called neutrals as further evidence of American warmongering and viciousness. It is, of course, exactly the opposite.

Many Americans, some of them in positions as consultants or advisors to the Departments of State and Defense, have been concerned about finding ways not only to limit future wars but to make them more humane. This has been a realistic and hard-headed approach with the knowledge that war cannot be eradicated immediately as long as there are so many peoples anxious to seize what is not theirs or impose authority over others. It may be impossible ever really to prevent wars just as it is so far impossible to prevent crime.

But the appalling power of today's weapons has also made the dangers of world war catastrophe quite possible. We have only to look at pictures of what the bombing of open cities, in England, Germany and Japan, did in World War II to realize the potential dangers. And there is also the even more serious moral problem of waging war against the non-combatants, especially the children. The deaths of more than a dozen children from American bombings of a Viet Cong village some days ago is an example of something we must try to avoid. Since human life is considered somewhat cheap among the enemy, avoiding the killing of children is not easy.

It has been apparent, however, that our bombing raids upon North Viet Nam have been carefully aimed at munition dumps, PT boat bases and other military targets rather than with any attempt to terrorize the population into surrender. Walter Lippmann even said the bombings were only something of a token affair, in open countryside and aimed at demonstrating our fire power rather than destroying anything. In recent days, however, official reports claim a considerable amount of military damage from the raids.

Some time ago we discussed editorially the various types of gasses which have been developed and tested at a United States Army research center in Maryland. The gas used in Viet Nam apparently produces a violent but temporary nausea which ends for the time being a combatant's interest in fighting. But it appears to have no lasting effect so that if non-combatants are involved, they are not really hurt. While under the effects of the gas, the Viet Cong also should be easier to disarm and capture.

At this stage we cannot expect our enemy to use the same sort of restraint for humane purposes. For such nations as Red China and the Soviet Union, the threat of our tremendous ability to inflict real damage must remain the major deterrent to expanding the war.

Our use of the nausea gas indeed may be presented as an excuse for the enemy use of more lethal fumes. But for our consciences' sakes, as well as for the lives of Vietnamese children, the experiment is worth the try.

How to Avoid Blight

Columns and columns have been written about planning on federal, state and local levels, and rightly so because the community of today with a plan for the long-range tomorrow will be a better place in which to live and do business.

Appleton, fortunately, has had the foresight to take advantage of grants and technical talent at its disposal to prepare a comprehensive plan which will pinpoint as near as possible the growth and needs of this urban complex between now and 1985.

Most encouraging is the report by Harland Bartholomew and Associates, a St. Louis firm contracted by the city, that Appleton has no blight or slum problems now but should guard against them in the future. The report also established land use districts, estimates on commercial, industrial and residential construction, along with defining a suitable land-use plan encompassing the entire city. Large-scale annexations were also recommended.

Considerable importance must be attributed to the recommendation that Appleton should set as its goal the stabilizing of some sectors of the community that will be vulnerable to blight within a few years. We agree with consultants that this can and must be done by the immediate establishment of a code enforcement program and inspectors to carry it out.

Conservation and rehabilitation of residential and commercial areas is a must for any city, as the years take their toll, to prevent deterioration and blight which eventually lead to slums and serious sociological problems. It can happen in this expanding urban area just as it has in other metropolitan centers across the country.

Appleton has now received the warning that 230 blocks should be designated as code enforcement areas. Unless this is done, the city may someday find itself saddled with urban renewal which will require the bulldozing of blocks at a time to again make them fit for building environment.

Plans of the Mayor and Common Council to hire a director of inspections and consolidate existing departments under one agency tie in with a program of good code enforcement.

State Highway Bonding

The plan for state highway bonding as a means of accelerating improvements of main line routes as reported by Chairman G. H. Bakke of the State Highway Department illustrates the dilemma of the new state administration on the question of expanding the highway system.

Gov. Knowles has made it quite clear that he is sympathetic to the idea of building better roads, and building them at a more rapid pace. It is a fair presumption that Mr. Bakke would not have made public the outline of the bond proposal without the governor's consent.

But it is equally evident that the Knowles administration won't risk asking for more highway user taxation, at a time of such moaning and groaning in political circles about the tax deficit that impends for the state general services budget. The bonding plan, as a practical matter, must be limited to an amount that can be amortized during a reasonable time out of expected receipts from present highway taxes, or pledged federal aid payments for the Interstate Highway system through 1972. That amount is apparently about $90,000,000, according to Mr. Bakke's outline.

That would be a comparatively minor amount in relation to the huge 12,000-mile state trunk system, or even the 2,000 or more miles that might be designed as highways of the highest priority. It represents less than the present annual construction budget. It compares with about $300,000,000 suggested for a "crash" program a little more than a year ago by former Gov. Reynolds.

It is the spectre of the Reynolds "Project 66" as it was optimistically labeled by the preceding Democratic administration, that is the practical political barrier in the way of the Republicans at Madison today, even if they manage to resolve their general budget difficulties in a way reasonably acceptable to the state taxpayers.

The Reynolds program posed a dilemma for the men who controlled the legislature during the former governor's term. It had considerable appeal, as it listed desirable and popular projects with a careful attention to centers of political power and the origin of influential legislators. The sizeable and influential highway building industry was prepared to back it, if it had the opportunity. But the Republicans were not sure that they wanted to open the way to a public works achievement for Mr. Reynolds that might be the kind of triumph that would salvage his own declining fortunes. They decided to "put the question to the people," in an advisory referendum.

The results astounded even the Republican skeptics. The electorate turned in a thunderous veto of about six to one. A more modest margin of defeat, or a close vote, could have been circumvented by Mr. Bakke and Mr. Knowles today. But they cannot expunge that stentorian popular verdict of only a year ago. Thus they cannot gracefully put together a program of significant highway construction expansion today.

Richmond Evacuation Rumored

100 YEAR AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Motor for March 23, 1864.

The capture of Goldsborough has been confirmed and Sherman is reported to have strong reinforcement of troops in that region. Reports of the intended evacuation of Richmond continue to arrive and members of the Rebel Congress have issued a "stirring appeal" to the people of the South.

It is believed that not only will Richmond be evacuated, but so will Raleigh, and the rebels will make a stand and concentrated effort at Danville.

Great consternation is said to prevail in Richmond, with the evacuation already reported to be in progress. The rebel leaders are said to be without hope, and look toward Mexico for asylum. Gen. Grant is expressing the opinion that the city will be evacuated within the next 10 days, and to President Lincoln is attributed the opinion that there will be no more serious fighting, and that he anticipates the surrender of the rebels.

It also is reported that Lee has notified Jeff Davis that with the present means at his command it will be impossible to resist the Union movements now in progress against him.

Few of us will be the object of a world-wide search for our skeletons and for samples of our handwriting seven hundred years after we die.

But, at the moment scholars are combing the world in search of a sample of the handwriting of the famous 14th century writer — Dante Alighieri, author of the immortal work known as "The Divine Comedy." The search is now pinpointed on a small house in Gargagnago, Italy.

Dante is thought to have been born in May of 1265 and is known to have died in Sept., 1321. As an outspoken nonconformist he was banished in 1302 from Florence, Italy, and befriended by Franciscan monks while he wrote "The Divine Comedy." He spent years wandering through Italy, an exile from his home city of Florence. After publication of the epic prose, Dante became one of the most famous men of the 14th century.

Refused to Return
Officials and citizens of Florence revoked his exile and pled with him to return and honor his native city. Acting as a true non-conformist, Dante refused.

and died at the court of Guido da Polenta in Ravenna.

Fearing that the rulers of Florence would demand that Dante's body be returned to Florence for burial, an act he would not have wanted, the Franciscans secretly sealed his casket into the wall of their monastery at Ravenna. In spite of threats the monks refused to tell or admit they knew where Dante was buried. The mystery of his burial place remained a secret for five centuries. In 1863, just before the celebration of the 600th anniversary of the birth of Dante the casket was found when the walls of the crumbling monastery were torn down. Scholars from many countries studied the documents interred with the skeleton and found positive proof that the bones were those of Dante.

Seek Originals
The second mystery has never been solved: Where are the original manuscripts of Dante's writings? His work is known only through 14th century publication, not from any original manuscript; and there is no sample of his handwriting or personal signature. Absence of the two make it difficult for scholars to trace changes made in "The Divine Comedy" over the centuries.

Dr. Charles Singleton, professor of Humanistic Studies at The Johns Hopkins University, a leading authority on Dante's writing, returned recently from Italy, where he was for the third time honored by the Italian Government for his contribution to our understanding of Dante. Dr. Singleton reported that a man believed to be a direct descendant of Dante is living in a small house at Gargagnago, Italy. Dante spent many years of his turbulent life as a political exile in this house.

In spite of many renovations through the centuries, the house retains some original parts from the time it was built in the 14th century. Scholars have asked permission to search every inch of the walls, flooring and ceiling of the house, in the hope of finding a manuscript, or pieces of paper which might be from the original manuscript of "The Divine Comedy," or at least some paper with Dante's handwriting and personal signature.

Bitter But Proud
Dante was everlastingly bitter about his banishment from Florence, and vowed that none of his works would ever return to Florence. Nevertheless, he was tremendously proud of his writing, and scholars cannot believe that he himself destroyed everything he ever wrote by hand, with pen. So, Dante scholars hope that someday, somewhere the manuscript and his signature will be found.

One hope is that he sealed his writings somewhere in the Gargagnago house. Dr. Singleton reports that Dante's descendant is reluctant to have scholars and government officials assure him that the house will be restored after the hunt — one of the most exciting treasure hunts in modern times.

If the hunt is made, and if fragments of manuscripts or Dante's signature is found, Dr. Singleton says, "these items alone will cast light on many unsolved facts about Dante, one of the world's greatest writers."

Who knows? Fragments of his writing may be hidden in the house. His remains were not found for six hundred years and were discovered just before the 600th anniversary of his birth. One hopes that a manuscript and signature may be discovered in time for the 100th celebration of his birth — in 1965.

Planlessness of State Government Amazing To Rookie Legislators

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
MADISON—One of the telling sidelights of the legislature's budget hearings during the last several weeks was the persistence of the questions of several of the freshman members of the Finance Committee about the formless organization arrangements of the rapidly expanding state government structure.

Wyngaard

Republicans as well as Democrats repeatedly asked department heads and their associates during the appropriation appeals about the reasons for their independent agency status, the origins of their often unique organization arrangements, and the possibility of functional consolidation with other agencies to eliminate apparent or probable duplication of work and money.

It is significant that such questions came almost always from legislators most recently elected. More senior members listened mostly without comment. Perhaps they knew out of their own earlier experience the futility of sporadic efforts to reorganize a administrative machinery. There is nothing quite as stubbornly hostile to change than a governmental bureaucracy, as young politicians learn as one of the first orders of business in their profession.

century or more, and reflecting the notions and the desires of generations of politicians long since departed. These dispatches have reported on the statehouse scene for about a quarter of a century. Not during that time, a least, has there been a thorough review of the administrative house-keeping, let alone actual reorganization.

Yet there is very little prospect that any individual proposal will be acceptable. Assemblyman Mitness of Rock County, for example, has asked some good questions at the Finance Committee hearings. If he should attempt to follow up some of his doubts with his own bill for a change in some agency, he would almost surely be defeated. Significant reorganization must involve a thorough overhauling of the whole structure, with the prestige of total administration backing, and bipartisan understanding and collaboration.

KNOWLES STUDY

Without any attempt to suggest that it may be successful, it is pertinent to note, therefore, that Gov. Knowles has established a so-called "task force" on administrative reform.

It consists largely of administrators in corporate enterprise. That base may turn out to be too narrow for the commission will deal with political problems and interests, as well as the literal matter of performing governmental services in the most effective and economical way. As a cub reporter I quickly learned that there are reasons for the particular rules and methods of operation of the newspaper by which I was employed that seemed strange to the confident critic fresh from the college campus. In government also there are reasons for everything, not always good reasons, but reasons, nevertheless.

It may require many months to survey the whole vast state establishment and to prepare a complete reorganization blueprint. Thus the Knowles commission may be working toward a solution that will be seriously considered in another gubernatorial term. Yet a comprehensive examination of the kind that has been ordered is probably the only practical approach. Piecemeal proposals, hastily conceived, will inevitably be shot down.

Did You Know? Harris Is Really a Meliorist

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS
Purely Personal Prejudices: No blasphemy against God is so shocking to me as the fact that hatred for one's enemies becomes respectable in wartime.

The people who dismiss "conscience" as merely a set of conventions which society implants in the young, forget that only man's spirit has the soil to nourish this planting—which is what distinguishes us from the other animals, in a radical sense.

Harris

Note to a reader in Vancouver: I am neither an "optimist" nor a "pessimist," both of which I think are silly and unrealistic attitudes, but a "meliorist," which is worth looking up in the dictionary if you don't know it.

Advocates of non-violent resistance to injustice may take comfort from these words: "In the evolution of civilization, if it is to survive, all men cannot fail eventually to adopt Gandhi's belief that the process of mass application of force to resolve contentious issues is fundamentally not only wrong but contains within itself the germs of self-destruction." Who said it? That great professional soldier of our time, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

No life seems more tragically wasted to me than that of the man who remains in adolescence until he slides into senility: who becomes, in effect, an "old boy" without even having been a man.

We can prove almost anything we want to prove: the real difference between people lies in what they want to prove, in their basic assumptions about the nature of the human animal and the proper goals of the social order.

Geniuses always seem commonplace to their relatives: they wonder how a man who is so lacking in the judgment and common sense they possess ever got to be so highly regarded by the world at large.

If all large-scale criminal activities were removed from the history books, the remainder would scarcely make a respectable pamphlet.

Which reminds me of Count di Cavour's trenchant remark: "What scoundrels we would be if we did for ourselves what we stand ready to do for Italy!"

Every night, all of us go "safely insane" by dreaming: those we call insane are merely the ones who are unable to wake up.

Thousands Join In Marching to Montgomery

King Proclaims 'Victory' Day for Unusual Protest

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Thousands of persons from throughout the nation streamed into a soggy civil rights camp today for a six-mile march to Alabama's historic Capitol — once the headquarters of the Confederacy.

Shortly after dawn more than 4,000 had massed behind St. Jude's Roman Catholic Hospital and school where marchers camped Wednesday night, ending a 50-mile trek from Selma to protest denial of Negro voting rights.

Participants flowed steadily into the campsite.

Victory Day
Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., leader of the march, proclaimed "victory day" for the climax of the unusual demonstration.

At the campsite, some of the marchers made a bonfire of rubbish. Cleanup patrols picked up the litter from Wednesday night when 30,000 came together for a rally.

A Negro girl, about 18, swung on a playground swing in the schoolyard.

Many of the Negroes wore high white hats, like bakers hats, with the initials U.A.W. and freedom slogans. The U.A.W. legend was not explained. Sack lunches were handed to 300 marchers who took part in the long highway pilgrimage.

Leftist Rule Of Ceylon Is Ended Today

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike's five years of leftist rule in Ceylon ended today. Dudley Senanayake, a pro-Western conservative, was sworn in as prime minister.

Jubilant crowds lit firecrackers and cheered as Senanayake entered Queen's House to be sworn in before Gov. Gen. William Gopallawa. There were more cheers as he drove off to put flowers before a Buddha in a suburban temple.

In a statement he appealed to all to "work together to make this a happier place for a free democratic people to live in under the rule of law in peace and prosperity."

7 Killed as U. S. Planes Collide

MANILA (AP) — Two U.S. Air Force planes collided in flight today, killing the seven men aboard. Clark Air Base reported.

The collision took place near the U.S. base north of Manila. The twin-engine C-47 and the T-39, a passenger-cargo jet, crashed and burned in an uninhabited area about a mile east of the base runway.

"There were no survivors among the five officers and two enlisted men aboard the two aircraft," an Air Force spokesman said.

6,000 Young Reds In Anti-American Tokyo Demonstration

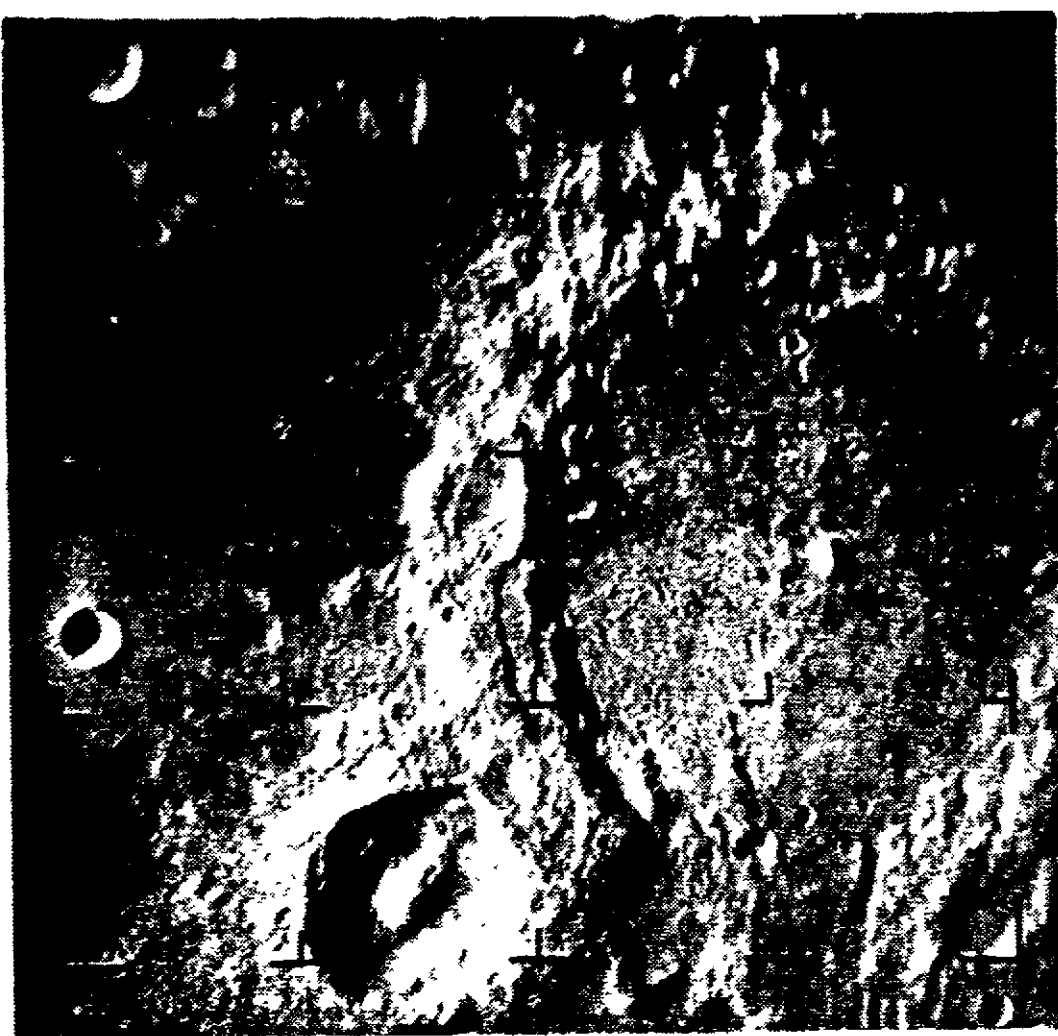

TOKYO (AP) — About 6,000 Communist demonstrators, mostly young workers, staged a nonviolent anti-American rally in downtown Tokyo today, noisily demanding the United States immediately withdraw from Asia.

The rally started after the marchers met at a downtown park to adopt a resolution demanding that the United States keep hands off affairs of Asians. The Communists also yelled for immediate halt of the use of what they termed "very poisonous gas in Viet Nam."

A Communist party spokesman said the party will hold more demonstrations, until the United States withdraws from Asia.

News Imposed For Okinawa

NAHA, Okinawa (AP) — A news blackout was imposed today for the imminent arrival of a U.S. Marine brigade from Hawaii that will add more than 7,000 men to the American armed forces on Okinawa.

A spokesman for the 3rd Marine Division said plans for American newsmen and photographers to view the landings with escort officers have been canceled and no information will be made available regarding the movement.

The order for secrecy at this American logistical and supply center followed banning newsmen from the Da Nang base in South Viet Nam, now guarded by an expeditionary brigade from the 3rd Marine Division.

The diplomat said he and other Chinese experts he has spoken with do not believe Peking will send troops into Viet Nam unless the United States sends

Congress Gets New Plan for U. S. Customs

Johnson Wants
To Eliminate All
Patronage Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson formally submitted to Congress today a plan to reorganize the Customs Bureau and eliminate all its patronage jobs.

The reorganization will take effect unless the House or the Senate votes to disapprove it within 60 days.

In announcing the plan over the weekend, Johnson said it would permit the 175-year-old Customs Bureau "to modernize its activities and establish strong regional and district supervisory positions."

In a special message today, Johnson told Congress elimination of jobs now held by presidential appointees in the customs service would save a million dollars a year in salaries.

He estimated that tightened management controls envisioned for the bureau "will make possible a net annual saving of $9 million within a few years."

Patronage Plums
The jobs that would be eliminated are collectors of customs, controllers of customs, surveyors of customs and appraisers of merchandise — long-time patronage plums.

"Incumbents of abolished offices will be given consideration for suitable employment under the Civil Service laws in any positions in customs for which they may be qualified," Johnson said.

Under the reorganization plan, all customs field activities would be supervised by six regional offices that would supply 113 independent field offices. In addition to the regional offices about 25 district offices would be established.

Johnson noted this would produce a net reduction of more than 50 field offices.

The six new regional offices would be in Boston, New York, Miami, New Orleans, San Francisco and Chicago. A proposed timetable calls for opening the San Francisco office Sept. 1, with the others opening next year.

The jobs of collectors in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands would not be affected. They are named by the secretary of the Treasury.

Peking Ready To Send Troops Against U. S.

Offer Includes All
Necessary Material
To Aid Vietnamese

TOKYO (AP) — Red China declared today it is ready to send men to fight "the U.S. aggressors" in South Viet Nam if the Communist Viet Cong asks for them.

Peking coupled the offer with the announcement that it will send "all necessary material aid, including arms and all other war materials, to the heroic South Vietnamese people who are battling fearlessly."

"At the same time," it said, "we are ready to send our men, whenever the South Vietnamese people want them, to fight together with the South Vietnamese people to annihilate the U.S. aggressors."

One Step More
In Hong Kong, a Western diplomatic expert on Chinese Communist affairs said Peking's latest declaration appears to go only one step beyond what it has been saying all along.

The expert, who has just returned from a visit to Communist China, pointed out that the declaration said, "We are ready to send our men."

"The operative word is 'ready,'" he said. "There is no definite commitment that they will actually go."

"Peking has been very crafty in its phrasing of its threats on this question of sending volunteers into the Viet Nam war. It has been playing the brinkmanship game made popular by its hated enemy — the late John Foster Dulles."

The diplomat said he and other Chinese experts he has spoken with do not believe Peking will send troops into Viet Nam unless the United States sends

Germany Extend Search for Nazis

BONN, Germany (AP) — The West German Bundestag voted today to extend the search for Nazi murderers until Jan. 1, 1970.

The vote was 344-96. Four members abstained. There were also 20 votes for it from West Berlin, but these are not officially counted.

The opposition Socialist party voted for the bill. Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's Christian Democrats, the dominant party, were divided. The Free Democrats, a smaller group, opposed it.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists poring over some of the 5,814 photos taken by Ranger 9 say they indicate the moon's crater rims may provide future astronauts with safer landing areas than would crater plains.

This possibility, advanced Wednesday night by scientists at a Jet Propulsion Laboratory news conference, was based on evidence of possible volcanic activity shown in pictures televised by Ranger 9 Wednesday just before it crashed into the 60-mile wide crater Alphonsus.

Alphonsus, in a highland area near the center of the face of the moon, is the site of red flashes which some astronomers have interpreted as hot bases escaping through fissures in the lunar crust.

Volcanic Activity
Dr. Gerard P. Kuiper, chief of the scientific team, said many of the thousands of craterlets seen for the first time on Alphonsus' floor were not caused by meteorite impact. "They can only be the result of volcanic activity," he said.

Surprisingly, the smoothest and hardest areas on the moon seem to be crater rims — where they are spots apparently level enough for landings — and ridges found on crater floors.

Kuiper said he believes the floors of large craters and many of the moon's broad plains are composed of solidified frothy lava which might collapse under the weight of explorers.

"It might well be better to look to the crater walls for potential landing sites," Kuiper said.

Wide-Angle Lens
The pictures released Wednesday night were taken by cameras other than the one which televised 200 wide-angle photographs live over networks during Ranger 9's final plunge.

The closest picture, taken with a narrow angle camera from a height of 34 miles, showed pock marks two to three feet across.

Dr. Eugene Shoemaker of the U.S. Geological Survey at Flagstaff, Ariz., said there were at least three types of these craterlets which were not caused by impacts of meteorites.

Some might once have been small volcanoes, he said. Others

Form Advisory Committee On Lake Water Utility District

Group Tentatively Schedules First Meeting in Appleton March 31

An advisory committee is being formed to explore the possibility of establishing a Lake Michigan water utility district to serve the entire Fox Valley.

The first meeting of the group, comprised of representatives of several valley communities, is tentatively scheduled in Appleton March 31. It is being called by the State Board of Health, which earlier in the month summoned municipal officials to Madison to discuss the possibility of tapping Lake Michigan on a cooperative basis to insure a quality, long-range water supply for the region.

Col. John Glenn To be Speaker At St. Norbert

Astronaut to Get Honorary Degree at May 30 Graduation

DE PERE — Col. John Glenn, the first American to orbit the earth, will be the 1965 commencement speaker at St. Norbert College, according to an announcement today by Very Rev. D. M. Burke, O.Praem., college president.

Glenn will also receive an honorary degree from St. Norbert during graduation ceremonies Sunday, May 30.

In January Glenn retired from the Marine Corps after a flying career that spanned 23 years, two wars, 149 combat missions, and everlasting fame for his three orbits of the earth Feb. 20, 1962.

The 43-year old astronaut now works for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at the manned spacecraft center near Houston. He is also on the board of directors of a national soft drink firm.

Marine Retirement

Glenn's retirement came 10 months later than originally scheduled. He had planned to leave the Corps a year ago, but a bathroom fall in Columbus, Ohio, changed his plans. He had already resigned from the astronaut ranks to run for U.S. Senator from Ohio, but slipped and hit his head on the bathtub, causing an inner ear disturbance. He withdrew from the Senate race.

The ear damage has now completely healed, although the astronaut was not certain until he flew a plane. "But after two weeks at El Toro Marine Base, Calif., doing every acrobatic stunt I had ever done before and not feeling any different, I know for sure I am cured," he said.

His bathroom accident is all the more remarkable considering Glenn's previous exposure to hazards.

Combat Record

Glenn flew 59 combat missions in World War II and 90 sorties in Korea, had his plane hit 12 times by ack-ack and played football, and the most severe previous injury he suffered was a skinned knuckle getting out of Friendship 7, his space capsule, after three orbits.

Of the orbit, Glenn says, "I guess the biggest thrill, if it can be called that, although it is more of a feeling of accomplishment of doing something concrete, was the space mission."

"I remember it vividly. I think of it a lot, too. I don't know if I can point out the most impressive feature of the flight — but the mission itself is the highlight of my life."

Glenn has turned down deals that would have made him a millionaire. But almost all of them involved either leaving the space program or using his influence for aerospace businesses.

"That's one of the reasons I chose the soft drink firm," he said. "Remaining with NASA, I wanted a business connection that had no direct relationship with the space program."

Plan Concert at Waupaca High

WAUPACA — The Waupaca Junior and Senior High School vocal and instrumental music departments will present a solo and ensemble recital at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Students who will represent Waupaca at the solo and ensemble festival at Birnamwood, April 3, will offer selections which they have prepared for the judges.

Selections will be presented in various rooms of the high school. Anyone interested may attend without charge.

Small Cities Conference

CLINTONVILLE — The Small Cities Conference has been called for April 21 at the Hotel Bilmay in Shawano, according to City Clerk Lloyd Eggleston.

Expect Boards to Do Best Possible Revamp

No Longer Automatic The most important of the visible consequences of the law, when it takes effect with the elections next spring, aside from the matter of balancing the size of individual districts, will be the abandonment of automatic membership on the county boards of town board chairmen.

Under the new system it will be possible for the town board among rural spokesmen about the Supreme Court's mandate to "redistrict both offices if elected to both, or else."

"I'm voting for the bill," said so veteran Assemblyman Elmersubstantial reduction in the dining room.

number of supervisory districts, with the result that at least 600 town chairmen will lose their places on county boards, or about one-quarter of the total county board membership.

Although there was deep resentment about the Supreme Court's involvement in the county organization issue and a general recognition of the historic importance of the legislation, the redistricting act was achieved with surprisingly little resistance on the record. Adoption was by overwhelming majorities, as even the hostile rural legislators acknowledged that they had no choice in the matter because of the attitude of the courts.

Manawa Fish Fry

MANAWA — The Mens Club of St. Paul Lutheran Church will serve its annual fish fry at 4:30 p.m. April 2 in the school dining room.

Businessmen Discuss Job Opportunities With Manawa High Students
MANAWA — High school business education students recently were addressed by area businessmen.

M. G. Hales, of the Farmers State Bank, spoke to the group on the subject of careers in banking. He stressed the importance and value of a high school and, if possible, college education in preparing for a position in the banking field.

Mrs. Clarence Roloff, of Trade Winds Inc., discussed the life of a secretary in relation to performing office duties efficiently.

John Mitchell, of the Appleton Employment Agency, administered tests to the business education students. He also discussed job possibilities and opportunities available to the high school graduate.

Judges Seek High Level Fair Exhibit Results

5th Annual Fox Valley Science Show by High School Pupils Scheduled This Weekend

A high level of scientific accomplishment will be sought by judges at the Fifth Annual Fox Valley Science Fair, to be held Saturday and Sunday at Casper Youngchild Hall of Science, Lawrence University.

This was the word of Dr. Richard W. Zuehlke, Lawrence assistant professor of chemistry, and chairman of the fair the "Meritorious" entrants at their discretion. Zuehlke stressed that no awards will be made without such an interview.

The fair is sponsored by Lawrence and the Appleton Knights of Pythias, Appleton Lodge in cooperation with the National Science Fair-International. Zuehlke explained judging procedures as described in an outline for the fair's eight-member judging panel, each entire judging panel will review named for a particular field of competence.

He said that the panel will seek, in general, "a creative use of minds and tools" among the exhibits. Either crude or sophisticated materials will be deemed worthy, so long as they evidence "ingenuity and scientific purpose, along with the basic scientific elements of intellectual honesty, experimental design and deductive and inductive reasoning," he said.

Seven Classifications Seven exhibit classifications are set for the fair, in contrast to two or three groups in other years. A weighted list of judging standards includes "scientific thought, creative ability, thoroughness, skill, clarity and dramatic value."

Judging will take place from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday. No public viewing will be permitted during the period.

During the first hour judges will will survey all exhibits grading them roughly into "Meritorious" and "Commendable" categories. In a second hour each judge will re-visit the "Meritorious" exhibits in his own major area of competence, applying the six judging standards.

Next, judges will interview the "Meritorious" entrants at their discretion. Zuehlke stressed that no awards will be made without such an interview.

During a luncheon period judges will determine awards within each category on the basis of the previous ratings, in personal interviews and discussion among panel members. The entire judging panel will review named for a particular field of competence.

Outagamie Asks for Access Control on OO

Spokesmen for Municipalities Demand That The County Board be Given Responsibility

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau MADISON — Spokesmen for Outagamie County municipalities Wednesday demanded that the state turn over control of access on CTH 00 in the county to the Outagamie County board. A total of 12 witnesses wrote or testified in person before the senate highways committee to system in anticipation of the reconstruction of the highway westward, that the state would maintain and patrolling the retain jurisdiction over access highway which was formerly U.S. 41 between Appleton and the east county line, should also be given jurisdiction over access questions.
